Ike Prods For Big 4 Results

West Is Hoping For Soviet Hint Of Berlin Aims

First Secret Session Today

GENEVA (AP) — Western foreign ministers hope for at least a hint from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at Friday's first secret session of the Geneva conference of Soviet aims on the Berlin issue.

Western officials said Thursday night the Westerners will give top priority in that discussion to test Moscow's readiness to settle the crisis.

The four ministers are to meet in an off-the-record session at British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd's town house in a move to end, through secret diplomacy, the stalemate that developed in formal debate at the Palace of Nations on a German settlement.

No Solution In Sight

This will be their first gathering here since the Geneva talks were recessed Tuesday to let the American, Soviet, French and British ministers attend the funeral in Washington of John Foster Dulles.

Although the conference resulted from Moscow's threat to expel the U. S., British and French garrisons from isolated West Berlin, the Big Four ministers have yet to come to within sight of a solution of the Berlin crisis.

Each side has rejected the Berlin proposals of the other. The hard bargaining will be over a stopgap arrangement.

In separate, private meetings with Gromyko, the Big Three ministers and West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano have reiterated that the West will not bargain on its right to remain in West Berlin, Allied sources said.

Possible Allied Offer

From that point the West, these sources said, is considering one vehicle for a Berlin solution:

The Soviets would confirm the right of the United States, Britain and France to continue to exercise supreme authority in West Berlin and to maintain garrisons there. In return, the Big Three powers would take certain steps to "improve the atmosphere" in Berlin from the Soviet standpoint—meaning to remove certain irritants.

In the Western view, the Soviet affirmation of Allied rights in West Berlin would include a guarantee of access to that city, in East German territory 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain.

Killian Resigns As President's Scientific Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. James R. Killian Jr. Thursday resigned as special assistant to the president for science and technology, a post he has held for a year and a half.

President Eisenhower named Dr. George Bogdan Kistiakowsky, 58, Russian-born chemistry professor, to succeed him.

In an exchange released by the White House, Killian attributed his resignation to "compelling personal reasons" about which he said the President had been warmly understanding. He will return to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from which he has been on leave. He was named chairman of the corporation of MIT last December.

In a letter expressing sorrow at Killian's departure, Eisenhower said Killian had made "a highly significant contribution."

Dr. Kistiakowsky was born Nov. 18, 1900, in Kiev, Russia, and was educated in private schools in Moscow and Kiev, where his father was a professor of international law at the University of Kiev.

He enlisted in the White (anti-Communist) army in 1918 and served two years. After being interned in Turkey and the Balkans he made his way to the University of Berlin, where he studied from 1921-25 and received his Ph. D. degree.

In 1926 he came to the United States and became a naturalized citizen in 1933. Since 1938 he has been professor of chemistry at Harvard University.

During World War II, Dr. Kistiakowsky participated in many projects for the National Defense Research Committee. He received the Medal for Merit for designing the arrangement of conventional explosives needed to set off the world's first atomic bomb.

Plane Carrier Mishap Kills 2

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A Navy plane trying to land aboard the attack carrier U.S.S. Essex Thursday raked the starboard side of the carrier, killed two men and injured 21 others.

The pilot of the FJ-Fury jet, Lt. James G. Steel, was killed. Airman Charles E. Porter was burned to death as flames swept along the starboard side of the carrier.

Protests Expected

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Space officials said Thursday they are braced for a new flood of protests against putting monkeys in the nose cones of missiles.

The complaints, which come in after each experiment involving animals, will be answered with a form letter, an Air Force spokesman at Patrick AFB said.

Algeria Revolt Issue Appears Bound For U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The U.N. General Assembly will again be asked this fall to take up the 4½-year-old revolt in Algeria, a spokesman for the 29-nation Asian-African group said Thursday.

Muhammad H. El-Farra of Jordan, Asian-African chairman for May, told reporters a meeting of the group gave unqualified support to the right of the Algerian people to independence. A statement was approved unanimously, he said, declaring the question can be settled fairly only through direct negotiations between the French government and representatives of the Algerian people.

The statement said members of the Asian-African group are concerned at developments in Algeria and at "the reported mounting casualties which indicate increased hostilities."

A report from Geneva said Algerian rebel representatives there had suggested that officials of France and the rebel provisional government meet on the Algerian-Tunisian border to agree on a site and terms for peace talks.

But in Paris a spokesman for French Premier Michel Debre rejected any such move. He recalled that President Charles de Gaulle had offered negotiations with the rebels last October on two conditions: That they be in France and concern a cease-fire only.

House And Senate Pass Money Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted $675,297,300 Thursday to finance the Commerce Department, Small Business Administration and some other federal agencies for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Passage was by unrecorded vote. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The Senate, meanwhile, passed 53-3 a $4,664,027,600 appropriation to finance the Treasury and Post Office Departments after adding $869,000 to it for new tax collecting agents.

Monkeys New Space Heroines

"Able" And "Baker" Survive Rocket Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The United States fired two monkeys 300 miles into space Thursday and brought them back alive and well. The spectacular recovery was an important step toward putting a man in space.

The two female monkeys—named Able and Baker—are the first animals this country has retrieved alive from a space flight.

Navy frogmen helped hoist the nose cone and the nation's new space heroines from the Atlantic Ocean at 4:08 a.m.

Only one hour and 33 minutes earlier the monkies streaked from Cape Canaveral perched in a powerful Jupiter missile.

The intermediate range rocket hurled the payload into space at blinding 10,000-mile-an-hour speed and dumped it in the ocean some 1,500 miles away in just 15 minutes.

The fleet tug USS Kiowa, a Navy recovery ship, plucked the nose cone from the sea. Some four hours later a medical officer aboard the ship messaged: "Able, Baker perfect. No injuries or other difficulties."

The Kiowa steamed toward San Juan, P. R., with the monkeys and vegetable and animal matter taken from the giant nose cone. The ship was expected to reach San Juan Friday morning.

Able and Baker will be flown to Washington, probably Saturday. There they are expected to receive a rousing welcome at a news conference of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

NASA cooperated with the Army and Navy in sponsoring this space shoot designed to gather data for its man-in-space program.

Electronic instruments radioed back information on how the monkeys reacted during the 15-minute flight. NASA primarily is interested in how Able and Baker reacted to radiation and the nine-minute weightless period to which they were subjected.

Initial information indicated they suffered little if any ill effects.

Several tiny samples of animal and vegetable matter also were stocked in the nose cone for a further study of cosmic rays and weightlessness. Included were specimens of corn, yeast, mustard seed, fruit fly larvae, human blood, bread mold spore and the eggs and sperms of sea urchins.

Officials said it probably would be several weeks before the affects on the matter could be evaluated.

Steel Industry Refutes Union Chief's Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — President David J. McDonald of the United Steelworkers Union said Thursday steel wage talks have gotten nowhere and the union is considering filing refusal-to-bargain charges against the industry.

Industry sources said later if there had been refusal to bargain it was because McDonald never has formally specified union demands in negotiations.

McDonald spoke at a National Press Club luncheon, the same forum used last week by Chairman Roger Blough of U.S. Steel Corp.

McDonald's position was that the industry has been overcharging for its products and is denying workers a fair share of boom profits. Blough's was that steel workers already are well paid and the union is seeking another round of inflationary pay boosts.

The union chief said steel profits are running so high the industry could afford to cut prices $18 a ton and still realize 6.8 per cent net after taxes. He said companies could afford a handsome wage boost and still enjoy record net profits with no price hikes.

McDonald declined to predict the outcome of current negotiations, to say what the union really wants, or how a strike might turn out.

Present steel labor agreements expire June 30. McDonald said the union still hopes peace pacts can be worked out in time.

Boeing Jet Airliner Sets Distance Mark

SEATTLE (AP)—Boeing's model 707-320 intercontinental jet airliner has flown 4,576 miles nonstop, a distance record for commercial jet transports, the company reported Thursday.

The intercontinental, a larger model of the 707 which now is in commercial use, set the mark on a nine-hour roundtrip test flight Monday from Seattle to Probisher Bay, Baffin Island. It averaged 508 miles an hour crusing at 35,000 to 40,000 feet.

Boeing Airplane Co. said the intercontinental is scheduled to enter service late in the summer.

Surviving Dionne Quintuplets Meet On 25th Birthday

MONTREAL (AP) — The four remaining Dionne quintuplets met briefly Thursday to celebrate their 25th birthday.

Cards and telegrams from all over the world have been pouring into Montreal to the quints, now separated by marraige.

Philippe Langlois, TV technician and husband of Cecile, told newsmen his wife had arranged to meet her other sisters in Montreal for a small get-together and probably lunch. They exchanged small gifts.

Their parents, who live in Callander, Ont., told reporters "we cannot manage to get to Montreal for health reasons. But we have sent the quints our gifts and cards."

Cecile and Marie are neighbors in a suburb here. Both are married. Cecile was the first of the quints to have a child, a son, Claude, born last September. Annette, now Mrs. Germain Allard, wife of a loan company executive, also has a son, Jean-Francois, born two months later. Yvonne, still single, is a nurse.

The fifth quint, Emilie, died at the age of 20.

Boy, 12, Saves Two Tots After Blast

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy scooped up two smaller boys and leaped to safety from the second floor of their home Thursday after an explosion blew out the walls and started a fire.

Leroy Deyo raced into the bedrooms of his half-brothers, Dale Miller, 2, and Lenn Miller, 1. He tucked them under his arms and jumped about 10 feet onto one of the fallen walls.

Leroy's mother, Mary Miller, 35, was blown out of the house by the explosion, which occurred when a spark touched off oil fumes that had accumulated in the cellar. She suffered serious burns on both legs.

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said Thursday he might stop off in Hungary on his way home from Albania. He is scheduled to end his 13-day visit to Albania June 6.

Reserve Bank Discount Rate Upped To 3½%

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board approved Thursday an increase in the discount rate from 3 to 3½ per cent at five federal reserve banks—New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Dallas.

The rise is effective Friday. Other Federal Reserve banks are expected to follow suit in the next few days.

The discount is the interest rate charged by reserve banks on money borrowed from them by member banks.

An increase in the discount is generally reflected through all interest rates so that individual borrowers from banks find rates going up with a rise in the discount rate.

Also, a higher rate is regarded as anti-inflationary on the theory that high interest charges tend to keep down borrowing and spending.

Reflecting the general business recovery and a gradual uptrend in interest charges, the discount rate has moved up in a series of steps from 1¾ per cent a year ago.

House Unit Cuts Defense Budget To $38 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee Thursday blasted at Pentagon bickering, cut $399,861,000 from new defense funds, and sided with the Army in the latest Army-Air Force missile dispute.

The threat of Soviet aggression is expected to worsen, the committee said as it recommended $38,848,339,000 in new funds for the Army, Navy and Air Force for the fiscal year staring July 1. The cut thus amounted to just over one per cent.

In a bill sent to the House floor for wide open debate next week, the committee put dollar emphasis on missile development, anti-submarine warfare and strategic bombers. It called the latter a potent deterrent to aggression because of its ability to strike back destructively.

The committee told President Eisenhower it would not quibble over the added cost if he decided to keep some of the big bombers in the air around the clock to prevent them from being destroyed on the ground by a sneak attack.

The committee turned down Eisenhower's request for 260 million dollars for a new aircraft carrier for the Navy, saying the money could better be used for the anti-submarine warfare program.

It also rejected the President's proposal to reduce National Guard strength below 400,000 and that of the reserve below 300,000, but it went along with his plan to cut the Army by one division and to lower Marine Corps personnel to 175,000. Floor fights are in prospect over amendments to raise Army strength from 870,000 to 900,000 and to freeze Marine Corps strength at 200,000.

In a move frankly designed to force the Pentagon to settle its rivalries over which service has the best missiles, the committee lopped $162,700,000 from the Air Force Bomarc missile program and increased funds for the Army Nike-Zeus missile. Both are designed as defensive weapons against other missiles.

Army Witness Confirms "Flying Saucer" Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The secrecy curtain was withdrawn slightly Thursday night from a hush-hush project which the Army hopes will give the United States its version of the flying saucer.

Heavily censored testimony made public by the House Space Committee confirmed that the revolutionary new aircraft will resemble a saucer. It is designed for low-level tactical flights, not for space travel.

The Army, enthusiastic over its potential, has spent more than five million dollars in the project in the last three years.

"It is one of our high priority programs," said Brig. Gen. F. H. Britton, director of developments for the Office of Army Research.

Britton said publicly when he testified April 15 that tests on the new vehicle were to begin shortly. He said initial flight tests will take place in Canada where the vehicle is being developed by Avro Aircraft, Ltd., under a joint U.S. Army-Air Force project.

He testified during space committee hearings on a family of vehicles being developed around the principle of the ground cushion phenomenon.

These vehicles, most of them still in the research stage, are designed to rise a few inches or feet off the ground by means of downward air blasts from the bottom or under edges of the machine.

However, the Army's Avrocar, as it has been dubbed, reportedly will be capable of rising to much greater altitudes.

"We consider this as a flying machine," Britton said.

Conferees Flying Back To Geneva

Gromyko Reminded Meeting At Summit Hinges On Progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Big Four foreign ministers headed back to Geneva Thursday under prodding by President Eisenhower to produce enough results to justify a summit meeting on the German crisis.

In the plush lounge-like quarters of a U.S. Air Force DC6, the four men will be virtually face to face for the 17-hour flight across the Atlantic.

Eisenhower met with the foreign affairs chiefs at the White House for 30 minutes in the morning. His admonition to get results was obviously aimed mainly at Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union.

The President called for "a measure of progress" at the Geneva meetings if the Soviets wants a summit conference.

Western strategists figure Gromyko's boss, Premier Nikita Khrushchev, sorely wants a summit session. Eisenhower used this prod — no Geneva progress, no summit — to try to nudge the talks out of the stalemate which has existed since they began May 11.

Ike's Joking Remark

After the White House conference, the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and Soviet Union took off in the plane of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter for the return trip to Geneva.

Eisenhower was quoted as having remarked jokingly before they took off that the foreign ministers should stay aloft until they reach agreement.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, relaying Eisenhower's remark to newsmen, added: "He said he would be ready to send a tanker plane so they could refuel in the air."

Before the takeoff, Herter advised congressional leaders the Geneva conference may last longer than expected. He said he didn't know how long. He counseled patience in dealing with the Reds and reported a high degree of unity among the Western Allies.

Earlier estimates had been that the Geneva parley might last a month.

Parley Is Deadlocked

The Soviets touched off the crisis by demanding last November the occupying powers get out of West Berlin and sign treaties with East and West Germany. The Western Allies countered with a package proposal aimed at unifying Germany, with Berlin as the capital, under safeguards for European security.

Each side has denounced the other's plan. Now it is understood Gromyko will look at the West's detailed proposal for uniting West and East Berlin under free elections.

The takeoff of the foreign ministers plane signaled the end of a speedy and busy Washington trip. The diplomats arrived here Wednesday during a two-day recess in the Geneva negotiations called so they could attend the funeral of former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Thursday's highlights came at the White House: Eisenhower's half-hour private chat with Herter, Gromyko, Britain's Selwyn Lloyd and France's Maurice Couve de Murville, followed by a 1¼-hour diplomatic luncheon attended by 24 officials including the foreign ministers of 14 countries.

Jonathan Winters Leaves Sanitarium

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I was just running too hard but I'm feeling pretty good now," comedian Jonathan Winters said Thursday as he and Mrs. Winters left by plane for New York.

The 33-year-old night club and television entertainer was hospitalized after an emotional upset May 12. He spent two weeks in a sanitarium, checking out Wednesday.

"I'm a little tired and weak, but am feeling a lot better now," Winters said.

"When I get back to New York I am going to just loaf around the shop at Mamaroneck and take it easy. I've gotta slow down. Been running too hard."

Winters has a gift shop at Mamaroneck, 25 miles out of New York.

Dulles Leaves Bulk Of His Large Estate To Widow

NEW YORK (AP)—John Foster Dulles left the bulk of his considerable estate to his widow in his will filed Thursday in Surrogates Court. Eventually, it goes to two of his three children.

Dulles, former secretary of state, who died of cancer May 24, made specific bequests of more than a quarter of a million dollars. But associates said it is too early to attempt an estimate of his total wealth.

Before he entered government service, Dulles was a high-salaried associate in Sullivan and Cromwell here, one of the nation's biggest law firms.

Dulles cut off his Jesuit son, the Rev. Avery Dulles, with a $5,000 bequest. But the will emphasized this was "not because of lack of affection for him but because special circumstances in his case make further provision seem inappropriate and unnecessary."

The will directs the executors to select from his private papers and records any contributions they think might be welcomed by his alma mater, Princeton University, where he was graduated in 1908. He also bequeathed the university $10,000.

The will was dated July 25, 1958.

Personal property, household effects and the bulk of his assets were willed to Janet Avery Dulles, the widow, in trust.

Upon her death, income from half the trust goes to a daughter, Mrs. Lillias Dulles Hinshaw of New York, who also received $10,000 outright.

The other half goes to Dulles' other son, John Watson Foster Dulles, who in addition receives $100,000.

A statement was approved unanimously, he said, declaring the question can be settled fairly only through direct negotiations between the French government and representatives of the Algerian people.

The statement said members of the Asian-African group are concerned at developments in Algeria and at "the reported mounting casualties which indicate increased hostilities."

A report from Geneva said Algerian rebel representatives there had suggested that officials of France and the rebel provisional government meet on the Algerian-Tunisian border to agree on a site and terms for peace talks.

But in Paris a spokesman for French Premier Michel Debre rejected any such move. He recalled that President Charles de Gaulle had offered negotiations with the rebels last October on two conditions: That they be in France and concern a cease-fire only.

House And Senate Pass Money Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted $675,297,300 Thursday to finance the Commerce Department, Small Business Administration and some other federal agencies for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Passage was by unrecorded vote. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The Senate, meanwhile, passed 53-3 a $4,664,027,600 appropriation to finance the Treasury and Post Office Departments after adding $869,000 to it for new tax collecting agents.

Monkeys New Space Heroines

"Able" And "Baker" Survive Rocket Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The United States fired two monkeys 300 miles into space Thursday and brought them back alive and well. The spectacular recovery was an important step toward putting a man in space.

The two female monkeys—named Able and Baker—are the first animals this country has retrieved alive from a space flight.

Navy frogmen helped hoist the nose cone and the nation's new space heroines from the Atlantic Ocean at 4:08 a.m.

Only one hour and 33 minutes earlier the monkies streaked from Cape Canaveral perched in a powerful Jupiter missile.

The intermediate range rocket hurled the payload into space at blinding 10,000-mile-an-hour speed and dumped it in the ocean some 1,500 miles away in just 15 minutes.

The fleet tug USS Kiowa, a Navy recovery ship, plucked the nose cone from the sea. Some four hours later a medical officer aboard the ship messaged: "Able, Baker perfect. No injuries or other difficulties."

The Kiowa steamed toward San Juan, P. R., with the monkeys and vegetable and animal matter taken from the giant nose cone. The ship was expected to reach San Juan Friday morning.

Able and Baker will be flown to Washington, probably Saturday. There they are expected to receive a rousing welcome at a news conference of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

NASA cooperated with the Army and Navy in sponsoring this space shoot designed to gather data for its man-in-space program.

Electronic instruments radioed back information on how the monkeys reacted during the 15-minute flight. NASA primarily is interested in how Able and Baker reacted to radiation and the nine-minute weightless period to which they were subjected.

Initial information indicated they suffered little if any ill effects.

Several tiny samples of animal and vegetable matter also were stocked in the nose cone for a further study of cosmic rays and weightlessness. Included were specimens of corn, yeast, mustard seed, fruit fly larvae, human blood, bread mold spore and the eggs and sperms of sea urchins.

Officials said it probably would be several weeks before the affects on the matter could be evaluated.

Steel Industry Refutes Union Chief's Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — President David J. McDonald of the United Steelworkers Union said Thursday steel wage talks have gotten nowhere and the union is considering filing refusal-to-bargain charges against the industry.

Industry sources said later if there had been refusal to bargain it was because McDonald never has formally specified union demands in negotiations.

McDonald spoke at a National Press Club luncheon, the same forum used last week by Chairman Roger Blough of U.S. Steel Corp.

McDonald's position was that the industry has been overcharging for its products and is denying workers a fair share of boom profits. Blough's was that steel workers already are well paid and the union is seeking another round of inflationary pay boosts.

The union chief said steel profits are running so high the industry could afford to cut prices $18 a ton and still realize 6.8 per cent net after taxes. He said companies could afford a handsome wage boost and still enjoy record net profits with no price hikes.

McDonald declined to predict the outcome of current negotiations, to say what the union really wants, or how a strike might turn out.

Present steel labor agreements expire June 30. McDonald said the union still hopes peace pacts can be worked out in time.

Boeing Jet Airliner Sets Distance Mark

SEATTLE (AP)—Boeing's model 707-320 intercontinental jet airliner has flown 4,576 miles nonstop, a distance record for commercial jet transports, the company reported Thursday.

The intercontinental, a larger model of the 707 which now is in commercial use, set the mark on a nine-hour roundtrip test flight Monday from Seattle to Frobisher Bay, Baffin Island. It averaged 508 miles an hour crusing at 35,000 to 40,000 feet.

Boeing Airplane Co. said the intercontinental is scheduled to enter service late in the summer.

Surviving Dionne Quintuplets Meet On 25th Birthday

MONTREAL (AP) — The four remaining Dionne quintuplets met briefly Thursday to celebrate their 25th birthday.

Cards and telegrams from all over the world have been pouring into Montreal to the quints, now separated by marraige.

Philippe Langlois, TV technician and husband of Cecile, told newsmen his wife had arranged to meet her other sisters in Montreal for a small get-together and probably lunch. They exchanged small gifts.

Their parents, who live in Callander, Ont., told reporters "we cannot manage to get to Montreal for health reasons. But we have sent the quints our gifts and cards."

Cecile and Marie are neighbors in a suburb here. Both are married. Cecile was the first of the quints to have a child, a son, Claude, born last September. Annette, now Mrs. Germain Allard, wife of a loan company executive, also has a son, Jean-Francois, born two months later. Yvonne, still single, is a nurse.

The fifth quint, Emilie, died at the age of 20.

Boy, 12, Saves Two Tots After Blast

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — A 12-year-old boy scooped up two smaller boys and leaped to safety from the second floor of their home Thursday after an explosion blew out the walls and started a fire.

Leroy Deyo raced into the bedrooms of his half-brothers, Dale Miller, 2, and Lenn Miller, 1. He tucked them under his arms and jumped about 10 feet onto one of the fallen walls.

Leroy's mother, Mary Miller, 35, was blown out of the house by the explosion, which occurred when a spark touched off oil fumes that had accumulated in the cellar. She suffered serious burns on both legs.

Reserve Bank Discount Rate Upped To 3½%

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board approved Thursday an increase in the discount rate from 3 to 3½ per cent at five federal reserve banks—New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Dallas.

The rise is effective Friday. Other Federal Reserve banks are expected to follow suit in the next few days.

The discount is the interest rate charged by reserve banks on money borrowed from them by member banks.

An increase in the discount is generally reflected through all interest rates so that individual borrowers from banks find rates going up with a rise in the discount rate.

Also, a higher rate is regarded as anti-inflationary on the theory that high interest charges tend to keep down borrowing and spending.

Reflecting the general business recovery and a gradual uptrend in interest charges, the discount rate has moved up in a series of steps from 1¾ per cent a year ago.

House Unit Cuts Defense Budget To $38 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee Thursday blasted at Pentagon bickering, cut $399,861,000 from new defense funds, and sided with the Army in the latest Army-Air Force missile dispute.

The threat of Soviet aggression is expected to worsen, the committee said as it recommended $38,848,339,000 in new funds for the Army, Navy and Air Force for the fiscal year staring July 1. The cut thus amounted to just over one per cent.

In a bill sent to the House floor for wide open debate next week, the committee put dollar emphasis on missile development, anti-submarine warfare and strategic bombers. It called the latter a potent deterrent to aggression because of its ability to strike back destructively.

The committee told President Eisenhower it would not quibble over the added cost if he decided to keep some of the big bombers in the air around the clock to prevent them from being destroyed on the ground by a sneak attack.

The committee turned down Eisenhower's request for 260 million dollars for a new aircraft carrier for the Navy, saying the money could better be used for the anti-submarine warfare program.

It also rejected the President's proposal to reduce National Guard strength below 400,000 and that of the reserve below 300,000, but it went along with his plan to cut the Army by one division and to lower Marine Corps personnel to 175,000. Floor fights are in prospect over amendments to raise Army strength from 870,000 to 900,000 and to freeze Marine Corps strength at 200,000.

In a move frankly designed to force the Pentagon to settle its rivalries over which service has the best missiles, the committee lopped $162,700,000 from the Air Force Bomarc missile program and increased funds for the Army Nike-Zeus missile. Both are designed as defensive weapons against other missiles.

Army Witness Confirms "Flying Saucer" Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The secrecy curtain was withdrawn slightly Thursday night from a hush-hush project which the Army hopes will give the United States its version of the flying saucer.

Heavily censored testimony made public by the House Space Committee confirmed that the revolutionary new aircraft will resemble a saucer. It is designed for low-level tactical flights, not for space travel.

The Army, enthusiastic over its potential, has spent more than five million dollars in the project in the last three years.

"It is one of our high priority programs," said Brig. Gen. F. H. Britton, director of developments for the Office of Army Research.

Britton said publicly when he testified April 15 that tests on the new vehicle were to begin shortly. He said initial flight tests will take place in Canada where the vehicle is being developed by Avro Aircraft, Ltd., under a joint U.S. Army-Air Force project.

He testified during space committee hearings on a family of vehicles being developed around the principle of the ground cushion phenomenon.

These vehicles, most of them still in the research stage, are designed to rise a few inches or feet off the ground by means of downward air blasts from the bottom or under edges of the machine.

However, the Army's Avrocar, as it has been dubbed, reportedly will be capable of rising to much greater altitudes.

"We consider this as a flying machine," Britton said.

Jonathan Winters Leaves Sanitarium

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I was just running too hard but I'm feeling pretty good now," comedian Jonathan Winters said Thursday as he and Mrs. Winters left by plane for New York.

The 33-year-old night club and television entertainer was hospitalized after an emotional upset May 12. He spent two weeks in a sanitarium, checking out Wednesday.

"I'm a little tired and weak, but am feeling a lot better now," Winters said.

"When I get back to New York I am going to just loaf around the shop at Mamaroneck and take it easy. I've gotta slow down. Been running too hard."

Winters has a gift shop at Mamaroneck, 25 miles out of New York.

Army Scores Over AF In Missile Row

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army scored a victory over the Air Force Thursday when the House Appropriations Committee slashed funds for the Air Force's Bomarc antiaircraft missile and allowed the full amount requested for the Army's Nike-Hercules.

The committee, in sending a $38,848,339,000 defense money bill to the House, said it was cutting funds for the Bomarc to focus attention on the necessity for an early decision by the Pentagon in the air defense missile controversy.

Saying billions of dollars are involved, the pursestring group — whose recommendations rarely are overriden in the House—declared "it is time to re-examine what we are getting for our money."

A few hours later, Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy told newsmen the Pentagon expects to have a master plan for U.S. air defense ready in a couple of weeks.

The Air Force had asked 447¼ million dollars for the Bomarc, but the House group axed 162¾ million of that total.

The Army asked 95 millions for its Nike-Hercules, and every penny of that amount was endorsed by the committee.

The Army-Air Force rivalry over these antiaircraft weapons has been simmering for some time.

The Hercules, which mounts an atomic warhead and can strike at targets 80 to 100 miles away, has been in operation for a year and is emplaced at number of bases. The Air Force contends its range is too short.

An advanced model of the Bomarc made its first, limited range test flight Wednesday from Cape Canaveral, Fla. This weapon, a solid-fuel improvement over an earlier model, is designed to carry a nuclear warhead 400 miles. The Army says it will be at least two years before a significant number of the Bomarcs will be installed.

Although the House committee did not come out flatly in favor of the Hercules, it tended in that direction. And this put it at odds with the equally powerful Senate Armed Services Committee which has called the Hercules virtually obsolete.

Before leaving to return to the Big Four talks at Geneva, McElroy said he admonished the services not to row with Congress.

Sources in the Senate reported Wednesday night that President Eisenhower had told McElroy he wants a recommendation soon on whether to concentrate on the Hercules or the Bomarc, or to keep both.

Asked about this at the airport, McElroy acknowledged he and Eisenhower had had "a little chat about it." Without going into detail, McElroy said he has spent some time on the problem and has "done some things I think will be constructive in easing" the quarrel.

Disappearance Act Regretted By Contractor

SILVER LAKE, Minn. (AP) — Earl Zrust, contractor who blames business pressure as the major cause of his family's unannounced flight from this small community last Dec. 29, says he's anxious to go back into business again.

Zrust, 30, his wife and five children were the object of a nationwide search until they were located three weeks ago in Reno, Nev., where Zrust had found work as a bricklayer. He told questioners he left Silver Lake because the pressure of his construction business was making him nervous.

He said that working for someone else, as he did in Reno, has its advantages. "But you don't have the freedom you do when you're working for yourself," he added. "Now, I'm getting anxious to get back to work. I started 12 years ago with nothing, and I guess I'm going to have to start from scratch again."

Zrust said he hopes to start several masonry projects next week. Since returning to his hometown, Zrust has been busy with his attorney trying to straighten out the financial tangle that resulted from his departure. At the time he had four houses under construction which were later completed by a local lumberyard.

As to Silver Lake, "While his disappearance caused a lot of anxiety and some inconvenience, it didn't really hurt anyone," said Joe Geylen, mayor of the community of 600 persons.

No Special Grand Jury Probe Of Lynching Hinted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mississippi Gov. J. P. Coleman indicated Thursday he will not convene a special grand jury to consider an FBI report on the lynching of Mack Charles Parker.

Coleman said the report will be given to the local district attorney in plenty of time to prepare his case for the next regular session of the Pearl River County, Miss., grand jury in November.

The Mississippi governor appeared before a Senate judiciary subcommittee to testify on civil rights legislation. But he spent most of the time answering questions about the Parker case.

Parker, a 23-year-old Negro, was kidnaped from a jail at Poplarville, Miss., in the early hours of April 25. He had been due to go on trial, charged with raping a white housewife. Nine days after he was dragged from his cell by masked men. Parker's bullet-punctured body was found in a river.

The Justice Department last Monday withdrew from the case, saying that no federal law was broken in the lynching. An FBI report on the case was turned over to Coleman for use in any local prosecution of the lynchers.

Three Charged In Bank Holdup

JACKSON, Mo. (UPI) — Three soldiers on leave were charged Thursday with the $17,481 holdup of the bank of Advance, Mo., but police still were after a fourth man and most of the money.

All three of the captured men were on leave from Ft. Campbell, Ky. They were identified as Sgt. James A. Foy, 25, Trenton, N.J.; Pvt. Walter S. Nicholson, 23, of Livermore, Calif.; and Pvt. Robert Lee Hager, 20, Fornfelt, Mo.

Hager was arrested at his home Thursday night and Foy was picked up in the same area later.

Nicholson, the first to be captured, was picked up at Cairo, Ill., after an Arab, Mo., waitress, Mrs. Wanda Stephens, furnished the license number of a car in which the men were seen riding.

Police said Hager had $4,700 in his possession when arrested and Nicholson another $100.

Convict Who Slew Sheriff Surrenders To Lawmen

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — An all-night search for a convict, who shot and killed a 52-year-old sheriff, ended in his surrender at dawn Thursday without a shot being fired at him.

Balding John Butler, 50, his hands still manacled, walked from his hiding place in a foggy, wooded area just as 150 policemen moved in with orders shoot to kill.

Butler looked bone-weary and scared. His white T-shirt was stained with mud and his blue trousers were ripped at the left knee. His wrists bled from the handcuffs.

The search for Butler ended only 200 yards from the spot where 12 hours earlier he had shot and killed Sheriff John R. Lauer of Northumberland County.

"I'm sorry. I didn't intend to shoot him. He was a friend of mine. I got the crazy idea I wanted to escape," Butler told police and newsmen.

Lauer and a friend, Merlin Diehl of Shamokin, Pa., were bringing Butler from Northumberland County to the penitentiary here. Diehl drove the 200-mile trip with Lauer beside him. Butler was in the rear seat, handcuffed with a belt passed through the cuffs to hold his hands down.

Lauer was driving on Route 19 about 15 miles north of Pittsburgh when the prisoner made his move.

A former Girardville, Pa., resident, Butler was facing 4 to 10 years for the $750 holdup of a Roman Catholic Church rectory at Mount Carmel, Pa., in August 1957. In the holdup, Butler threatened to kill five priests, police said.

Youth Drowns Trying To Retrieve Innertube

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—An 18-year-old Annapolis boy drowned Thursday while trying to retrieve a drifting innertube in Luce Creek off Severn River.

The body of Gerald Kirkley was recovered by members of the Arnold Rescue Squad about 45 minutes after dragging operations started.

Two companions, Farnum Corr and Douglas Keats, told state police they were swimming with Kirkley in the creek when he started out for the innertube. As he reached it, he called out for help and went under. They didn't see him again until the body was recovered.

Health Dept. Issues Plastic Bag Warning

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Health Department has warned Maryland parents not to place plastic bags within the reach of babies and small children.

Dr. Perry F. Prather, state health director, said Thursday two infants, aged 4 and 5 months, have suffocated in plastic bags in Baltimore City and Baltimore County within the past two months.

He said an estimated 35 babies and small children have suffocated in the plastic containers in the nation so far this year and the National Safety Council expects the number to reach 100 by the end of the year.

He said a widespread educational program directed to parents of young children is being prepared by the department.

Twisters Rake Midwest Area

By United Press International

A rash of tornadoes swooped across Iowa and Wisconsin Thursday night amidst an almost solid band of severe thunderstorm activity.

Tornado and extreme weather warnings were issued for a seven state Midwestern area. Officials anxiously watched for possible twisters in parts of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois.

Iowa still seemed to have borne the brunt of the storm. It recorded at least two tornadoes, though no injuries or severe damage was known.

Officials at Prairie du Sac Dam, near Madison, Wis., told of seeing a small funnel pick up several small boats. Several small funnel clouds were believed to have touched down just north of Ripon, accompanied by heavy rain. Another funnel was sighted near Oshkosh.

A rash of tornadoes swooped across Iowa and Wisconsin Thursday night amidst an almost solid band of severe thunderstorm activity.

Tornado and extreme weather warnings were issued for a seven state Midwestern area. Officials anxiously watched for possible twisters in parts of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois.

Iowa still seemed to have borne the brunt of the storm. It recorded at least two tornadoes, though no injuries or severe damage was known.

Officials at Prairie du Sac Dam, near Madison, Wis., told of seeing a small funnel pick up several small boats. Several small funnel clouds were believed to have touched down just north of Ripon, accompanied by heavy rain. Another funnel was sighted near Oshkosh.

Ocean City Plans Drive On Teen-Ager Drinking

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—Mayor Hugh Cropper Jr. said Thursday city officials intend to crack down on teen-age drinking and rowdyism during the summer season.

Mayor Cropper also forecast a highly successful season, which officially gets under way this Memorial Day weekend.

He noted that Worcester County has a new law prohibiting minors from possessing alcoholic beverages and warned: "We are going to enforce that law."

"It is our intention," he said, "to break up teen-age drinking and rowdyism and to keep teenagers out of night clubs."

The mayor said the conduct of the resort city's younger people has become one of the city's chief concerns.

On the positive side, he said, the city again has leased the pier ballroom for nightly dances. The mayor and council will sponsor twice weekly record hops beginning June 12 and 13.

Mayor Cropper said hotel officials are pleased with their reservations for the coming weeks. He said new building permits at the Eastern Shore resort city have totaled $1,500,000 this year.

Another good omen, he said, was the easing of the threat of oil on the beaches. Great concern was voiced in recent months over the cargo of the tanker African Queen, which ran aground and broke in half off Ocean City last Dec. 30.

"Government officials have told us we are in no danger," said Mayor Cropper. "Her cargo is gone and one half of the ship has floated nearly to the Virginia line."

Porter Kills Wife, Himself

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man killed his wife and then himself Thursday with a shotgun to climax what police said was a four-day family argument.

This is the story, as police pieced it together:

Delmon Simpson, 36, a porter employed by the Federal Bureau of Printing and Engraving, and his wife, Dona, 31, began arguing Sunday night. He threatened to kill her and their four children.

The argument continued off and on. It broke out again Wednesday night. Mrs. Simpson screamed to the children to get out of the house. They fled, one of them, Diane, 10, jumping from a second floor window.

Simpson fired three shots at his wife as she tried to flee down the steps, the third one hitting her in the back. He then shot himself.

Members of three TWU locals ratified the agreement which is effective June 5, with wage increases retroactive to April 20.

The contract provides wage increases of five per cent this year, approximately 10 cents an hour; two and a half per cent next year, or five cents an hour, and two and a half per cent in 1961.

3,600 Evacuated From Plant In Fire

BALTIMORE (AP) — About 3,600 workers were evacuated Thursday from the Westinghouse Air Arm Division plant near Friendship Airport when fire broke out in the machine shop.

The blaze was put out in short time by the company's fire brigade, but as a precautionary measure fire companies had been called from Glen Burnie and nearby communities.

The plant workers remained out of the building for about five minutes while the flames were being extinguished. Only slight damage was reported.

Vagrant Questioned In 29-Year-Old Murder

CENTREVILLE, Md. (AP) — State Police Thursday were checking a report that a 51-year-old man held here for vagrancy is wanted for the murder 29 years ago of a federal agent in North Carolina.

Solomon Williams was arrested last Sunday on the vagrancy charge and was sentenced last night to 10 days in the Queen Annes County jail.

State Police at nearby Easton said they had not been able to verify the report that Williams was wanted in New Bern, N.C., for the 1930 slaying of an Internal Revenue Service agent.

However, State Police were preparing photographs of Williams to be sent to North Carolina authorities. Investigating officers said they assumed witnesses would be sought in North Carolina who could identify Williams as the killer.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Now is the time to fashion your summer swim suit figure.

Ah, The Good Old Summertime!

Today's the day to fashion your form for the swimming days just ahead! If your figure needs improvement, don't delay.

The place to start is with your bustline, since exercises for increasing measurements require time to take effect. Actually it can be done only by building up the supporting muscles in the chest with slow and regular exercise. The one that follows is unbeatable:

Sit with arms raised straight overhead. Curl your fingers under as if you were grasping an imaginary rod. Then, very slowly bend your elbows and pull your arms down until your elbows almost touch each other at chest level. Relax and repeat. Fifteen times a day is enough at the beginning. Increase to 50 times as soon as that amount does not fatigue you.

If an over-developed bust is your problem, chances are excess weight is a factor. Then diet must be combined with exercise. Exercise alone will only turn the trick when weight is not excessive. The following exercises perform double duty by firming the chest muscles while decreasing the measurements:

Stand with your feet astride; arms down at your sides. Swing both arms forward and upward to shoulder level. Then, swing your arms up over your head and back behind your shoulders as far as you can reach. Continue the backward swing until the arms are at your sides again. (It's a good deal like a back-hand stroke in swimming and just as continuous.) Do it five times slowly and then five times rapidly.

Still standing astride, extend your arms to their full length; cross them at the wrists; fling both arms diagonally up and back so that they are back of your head at the end of the movement. Swing them down in front of you to the starting position. Repeat five times slowly and then five times rapidly. Increase tinue the backward swing until the arms are at your sides again. (It's a good deal like a back-hand each day until you reach 25 times.

Keep working and your efforts will surely be rewarded!

As far as diet is concerned, use your good judgment if the weight problem is not serious. But why not use also the help of my new booklet, "Your Diet and Calorie Guide." It lists the calorie content per serving or small amount, for just about any item you can think of. It will help in planning your meals — and it's FREE! just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this paper.

TOMORROW: The Beautiful June Bride.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Now is the time to fashion your summer swim suit figure.

Ah, The Good Old Summertime!

stroke in swimming and just as continuous.) Do it five times slowly and then five times rapidly.

Still standing astride, extend your arms to their full length; cross them at the wrists; fling both arms diagonally up and back so that they are back of your head at the end of the movement. Swing them down in front of you to the starting position. Repeat five times slowly and then five times rapidly. Increase

Today's the day to fashion your form for the swimming days just ahead! If your figure needs improvement, don't delay.

The place to start is with your bustline, since exercises for increasing measurements require time to take effect. Actually it can be done only by building up the supporting muscles in the chest with slow and regular exercise. The one that follows is unbeatable:

Sit with arms raised straight overhead. Curl your fingers under as if you were grasping an imaginary rod. Then, very slowly bend your elbows and pull your arms down until your elbows almost touch each other at chest level. Relax and repeat. Fifteen times a day is enough at the beginning. Increase to 50 times as soon as that amount does not fatigue you.

If an over-developed bust is your problem, chances are excess weight is a factor. Then diet must be combined with exercise. Exercise alone will only turn the trick when weight is not excessive. The following exercises perform double duty by firming the chest muscles while decreasing the measurements:

Stand with your feet astride; arms down at your sides. Swing both arms forward and upward to shoulder level. Then, swing your arms up over your head and back behind your shoulders as far as you can reach. Continue the backward swing until the arms are at your sides again. (It's a good deal like a back-hand each day until you reach 25 times.

Keep working and your efforts will surely be rewarded!

As far as diet is concerned, use your good judgment if the weight problem is not serious. But why not use also the help of my new booklet, "Your Diet and Calorie Guide." It lists the calorie content per serving or small amount, for just about any item you can think of. It will help in planning your meals — and it's FREE! just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this paper.

Ike Escapes Storm

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is a strange time in U.S. politics.

Outwardly at least, all is calm. Harsh words are rarely spoken. Any leading politician caught throwing even a marshmallow at the opposing party is looked upon as a cad.

Especially is this true of Congress and the President.

What makes it strange is this: the forecast was for stormy weather.

A heavily Democratic Congress, it was said, would make it rough on a Republican president. And Dwight D. Eisenhower would be handicapped in fighting back because he is barred by the 22nd Amendment from running for a third term.

Previously a president's secret weapon is supposed to have been this threat:

"If you aren't good boys, I'll come back and lick you again."

Well, the storm hasn't come. Eisenhower continues to refuse to discuss personalities, even when it would seem personalities need a little discussing. And Congress, under Democratic Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, continues to play it cool.

Oh, occasionally there have been mild complaints.

At his last news conference Eisenhower said Congress ought to get on the ball; it should pass some legislation and confirm some appointments.

What makes this calm more surprising is that traditionally Congress and the president tend to be at outs.

A couple of examples will show the customary uneasy relationship.

Here's Woodrow Wilson: "Anybody in the Senate or House can say any abusive thing he pleases about the president, but it shocks the propriety of the whole country if the president says what he thinks about them.

"But when the lid is off, I'm going to resume my study of the dictionary to find adequate terms in which to describe the fatuity of these gentlemen with their poor little minds that never get anywhere but run round in a circle and think they are going somewhere."

New Presbyterian Leader Plans Travels

By MIKE SOFFIN

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The new moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. (South) plans to take to the road quite often this year.

Dr. Ernest Trice Thompson, newly elected leader of 873,000 Presbyterians, wants to get to know the people and problems of his church. His travels will take him to foreign countries, too.

"I'll be spending a whole month in Brazil this summer attending two church meetings," says the 64-year-old professor of church history at Union Theological Seminary here, where he has taught since 1922.

Thompson's election as moderator last month was regarded by many friends as evidence of the liberal trend of the church in recent years.

Not 20 years ago Thompson's views and pronouncements on theological matters were challenged by one lay leader as being out of line with basic Presbyterian doctrine. Thompson himself called for an investigation of the charges. His position was upheld.

Thompson attributes the row to "tensions between conservatives and liberals. The more liberal group with which I'm generally identified began to excite the concern of the conservatives."

In the years that followed, the church has been moving in a liberal direction, he says.

Being moderator gives Thompson an opportunity to expound his views throughout the church.

Among problems facing the denomination, race looms as most important, he feels, even though Negroes are a small minority. The Presbyterian Church in the U.S. endorsed the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing public school segregation soon after it was handed down, and later reaffirmed that position.

For another thing, Thompson thinks women of the church should be eligible for the posts of elder, deacon and minister. Traditionally, they have been barred from these offices.

Beer Can Directive

SCULTHORPE AIR BASE, England (UPI) — U. S. Air Force Col. R. J. Clizbe issued this stern warning to his men:

"I consider unseemly conduct on the golf course not only to be military misdemeanor but an act of disloyalty on the part of our personnel, both to their country, whose reputation they are prejudicing, and to their associates, whose privileges to use the golf course are put in jeopardy."

The complaint involved beer cans on the greens.

Parakeet Revived After Washer 'Ride'

EPHRATA, Pa. (AP)—A parakeet called Happy is the cleanest and most chastened pet in town. It went through the washer—and wringer, too, Wednesday, in a manner of speaking.

Mrs. Roy Steinmetz started the washing machine, leaving the lid open, and went into another room for a moment.

Returning, she was stopped by a scream. It was her daughter, Anne, 6, shouting that the bird had flown into the washer.

The last time the mother had seen the parakeet it was perched pertly on Anne's shoulder. Now Happy was a soapy blur going round and round with the clothes.

Mrs. Steinmetz clicked off the switch, pulled Happy out, wrapped him in a woolly blanket and gave him artificial respiration by massaging his throat for an hour.

When the bird perked up Mrs. Steinmetz fed him a stiff shot of bitters. It worked like a charm.

Ike Escapes Storm

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is a strange time in U.S. politics.

Outwardly at least, all is calm. Harsh words are rarely spoken. Any leading politician caught throwing even a marshmallow at the opposing party is looked upon as a cad.

Especially is this true of Congress and the President.

What makes it strange is this: the forecast was for stormy weather.

A heavily Democratic Congress, it was said, would make it rough on a Republican president. And Dwight D. Eisenhower would be handicapped in fighting back because he is barred by the 22nd Amendment from running for a third term.

Previously a president's secret weapon is supposed to have been this threat:

"If you aren't good boys, I'll come back and lick you again."

Well, the storm hasn't come. Eisenhower continues to refuse to discuss personalities, even when it would seem personalities need a little discussing. And Congress, under Democratic Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, continues to play it cool.

Oh, occasionally there have been mild complaints.

At his last news conference Eisenhower said Congress ought to get on the ball; it should pass some legislation and confirm some appointments.

What makes this calm more surprising is that traditionally Congress and the president tend to be at outs.

A couple of examples will show the customary uneasy relationship.

Here's Woodrow Wilson: "Anybody in the Senate or House can say any abusive thing he pleases about the president, but it shocks the propriety of the whole country if the president says what he thinks about them.

"But when the lid is off, I'm going to resume my study of the dictionary to find adequate terms in which to describe the fatuity of these gentlemen with their poor little minds that never get anywhere but run round in a circle and think they are going somewhere."

New Presbyterian Leader Plans Travels

By MIKE SOFFIN

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The new moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. (South) plans to take to the road quite often this year.

Dr. Ernest Trice Thompson, newly elected leader of 873,000 Presbyterians, wants to get to know the people and problems of his church. His travels will take him to foreign countries, too.

"I'll be spending a whole month in Brazil this summer attending two church meetings," says the 64-year-old professor of church history at Union Theological Seminary here, where he has taught since 1922.

Thompson's election as moderator last month was regarded by many friends as evidence of the liberal trend of the church in recent years.

Not 20 years ago Thompson's views and pronouncements on theological matters were challenged by one lay leader as being out of line with basic Presbyterian doctrine. Thompson himself called for an investigation of the charges. His position was upheld.

Thompson attributes the row to "tensions between conservatives and liberals. The more liberal group with which I'm generally identified began to excite the concern of the conservatives."

In the years that followed, the church has been moving in a liberal direction, he says.

Being moderator gives Thompson an opportunity to expound his views throughout the church.

Among problems facing the denomination, race looms as most important, he feels, even though Negroes are a small minority. The Presbyterian Church in the U.S. endorsed the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing public school segregation soon after it was handed down, and later reaffirmed that position.

For another thing, Thompson thinks women of the church should be eligible for the posts of elder, deacon and minister. Traditionally, they have been barred from these offices.

Beer Can Directive

SCULTHORPE AIR BASE, England (UPI) — U. S. Air Force Col. R. J. Clizbe issued this stern warning to his men:

"I consider unseemly conduct on the golf course not only to be military misdemeanor but an act of disloyalty on the part of our personnel, both to their country, whose reputation they are prejudicing, and to their associates, whose privileges to use the golf course are put in jeopardy."

The complaint involved beer cans on the greens.

Parakeet Revived After Washer 'Ride'

EPHRATA, Pa. (AP)—A parakeet called Happy is the cleanest and most chastened pet in town. It went through the washer—and wringer, too, Wednesday, in a manner of speaking.

Mrs. Roy Steinmetz started the washing machine, leaving the lid open, and went into another room for a moment.

Returning, she was stopped by a scream. It was her daughter, Anne, 6, shouting that the bird had flown into the washer.

The last time the mother had seen the parakeet it was perched pertly on Anne's shoulder. Now Happy was a soapy blur going round and round with the clothes.

Mrs. Steinmetz clicked off the switch, pulled Happy out, wrapped him in a woolly blanket and gave him artificial respiration by massaging his throat for an hour.

When the bird perked up Mrs. Steinmetz fed him a stiff shot of bitters. It worked like a charm.

Plastic Freighter

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union launched a plastic ship Wednesday. Moscow radio said its hull is as strong as any metal but weighs only one third as much. No details were given on the plastics used in the diesel-driven freighter.

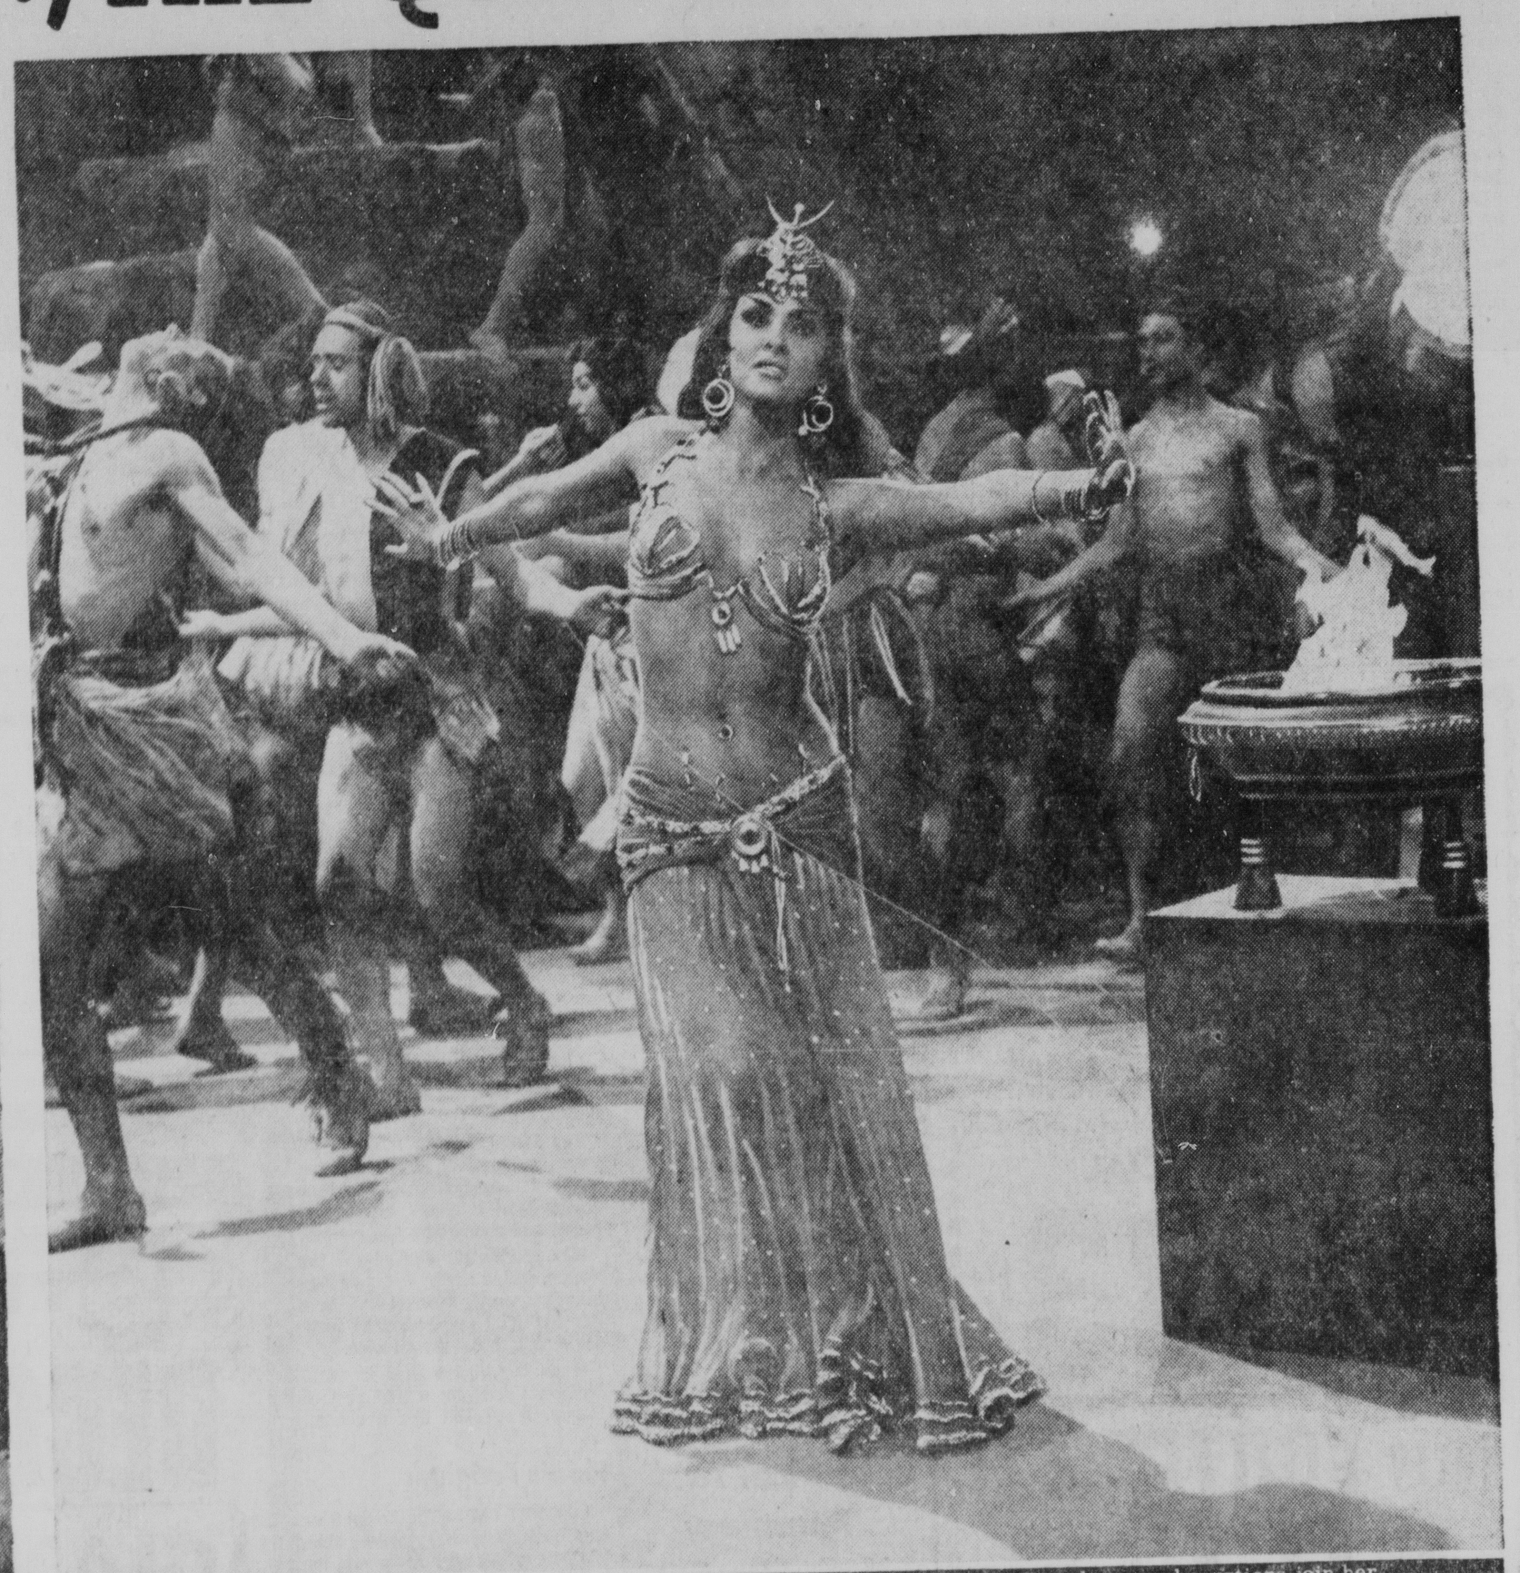
GINA, THE QUEEN OF SHEBA

Gina races across the Zaragoza wasteland in a burst of healthy energy.



Gina displays her charms as Magda, Queen of Sheba, in dance at pagan rites. Her slaves and courtiers join her.

The baked soil of Spain never seemed hotter than when the fiery Gina Lollobrigida tramped it day after day in the shooting of her new picture, "Solomon and Sheba."

As Queen Sheba, the Biblical flame which singed King Solomon, the role and the terrain, the wild country around Zaragoza, where much of the filming was done, suited the Italian actress and her temperament perfectly.

The trip to Spain was Gina's first, and her stay there was a long one. An original four-month shooting schedule stretched into six—then into nine. But, says Gina, "I never got homesick. I brought our home to Spain." Gina's husband, Dr. Milko Skofic made frequent trips from Italy, and their 18-month-old son, Milko, Jr., and his nurse were in Madrid during all of Gina's stay. Every other day the nurse brought the baby to the set to visit his mother. Sometimes he didn't recognize her in her exotic makeup and elaborate costumes, and he cried bitterly.

In "Solomon and Sheba," a spectacular pagan rite scene brings out some of Gina's most alluring charms—and, surely, her most revealing costume. In it, she dances wildly, while her Sheban slaves and courtiers dance around her. Sheba was one of the most beautiful of pagan queens.

In chariot, Gina uses whip to drive the horses during battle in which her troops aid King Solomon. Her captain of guards handles reins.

A last minute touch-up before facing camera. Gina checks hairdo.

At script conference, Gina bundles up against cold wind as she listens to director King Vidor explain next scene. Script girl follows sequence.

Family reunion is welcome break for Gina, who watches husband, Dr. Milko Skofic, lift son, Milko, Jr., high in air on his arrival from Italy. He made many trips to Spain to visit family.

On a sightseeing trip, Gina stops at stand in Segovia to buy postcards.

Court Awards $25,000 To Man Hurt In Crash

A $25,000 award has been granted a Duquesne, Pa., passenger in the truck that ran away in the 800 block of Bedford Street last fall and crashed into the Wills Creek flood wall.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris issued the opinion in favor of Steven Reagan, 35, who had sued the firm for which he worked at the time and the owner of the truck.

The defendants were the Ewart Corporation, a McKees Rock, Pa., roofing concern, and Don Ewart. But Judge Harris ruled that the Ewart firm was the legal owner o the truck and excluded Don Ewart from the suit.

Gladys Marie Illiff, this city, whose car was damaged by the truck, was also awarded $300 in her suit against the firm.

Judge Harris stated that there were two points in the suit, the ownership of the truck and negligence of the firm.

The burden of the proof on the ownership was remained with the plaintiff, he said, and there was no evidence produced on this count by his counsel.

The only other question involved was whether or not the plaintiff presented legally sufficient evidence of primary negligence on the part of the Ewart Corporation.

"It is the duty of one operating a motor vehicle on the public highways to see that it is in reasonably good condition and properly equipped so that it may be at all times controlled and not become a source of danger," the judge said.

He cited Maryland law which requires every motor vehicle to have two sets of brakes. He pointed out that in some states having similar laws, it has been held that driving with defective brakes is negligence per se, but the Maryland Court of Appeals has held that failure of them to work is not negligence per se.

On the other hand, he said, the Court of Appeals held in another case that failure of brakes to operate does not make out a prima facie, or legally sufficient, case which the driver may defend by showing proper inspection and a sudden failure of them without warning.

However, Judge Harris declared, after counsel for Reagan made out a prima facie case on this point, the defendant corporation did not defend that issue by showing proper inspection and sudden failure.

Under the circumstances, the court found a verdict for the plaintiff.

The jurist noted that Reagan suffered considerable shock, laceration of the frontal region and lacerations of the right cheek, fracture of the right leg, fracture of the bone in his foot and contusions and abrasions.

He was in Sacred Heart Hospital from September 13 until December 30 when he was removed to McKeesport Hospital. A local doctor said that, in his opinion, Reagan has suffered 50 per cent permanent disability.

His medical and hospital expenses amounted to $1,784.07. He has been unable to work since then, and when he will be able to work again is unknown.

Ted Cartmel, 30, of Elizabeth, Pa., was the driver of the truck loaded with roofing compound when the brakes failed in the 800 block of Bedford Street.

The vehicle, at a speed over 50 miles an hour, literally flew over the B&O Railroad crossing and finally came to a crashing stop against the floodwall in the little parking area at the end of the street.

Reagan was pinned in the cab, Cartmel suffered facial injuries, and a 19-year-old hitchhiker, William Mock, of Grand Avenue, had only a cut finger.

The impact was so great the wallet of one of the men was thrown over the flood wall, and into the creek, a distance of about 25 feet.

Miraculously, the truck missed hitting any other car at the six or seven intersecting streets onto Bedford Street.

When ancestors of dogs are of the same breed and are known and recorded, the dogs are said to be pedigreed.

Court Awards $25,000 To Man Hurt In Crash

A $25,000 award has been granted a Duquesne, Pa., passenger in the truck that ran away in the 800 block of Bedford Street last fall and crashed into the Wills Creek flood wall.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris issued the opinion in favor of Steven Reagan, 35, who had sued the firm for which he worked at the time and the owner of the truck.

The defendants were the Ewart Corporation, a McKees Rock, Pa., roofing concern, and Don Ewart. But Judge Harris ruled that the Ewart firm was the legal owner o the truck and excluded Don Ewart from the suit.

Gladys Marie Illiff, this city, whose car was damaged by the truck, was also awarded $300 in her suit against the firm.

Judge Harris stated that there were two points in the suit, the ownership of the truck and negligence of the firm.

The burden of the proof on the ownership was remained with the plaintiff, he said, and there was no evidence produced on this count by his counsel.

The only other question involved was whether or not the plaintiff presented legally sufficient evidence of primary negligence on the part of the Ewart Corporation.

"It is the duty of one operating a motor vehicle on the public highways to see that it is in reasonably good condition and properly equipped so that it may be at all times controlled and not become a source of danger," the judge said.

He cited Maryland law which requires every motor vehicle to have two sets of brakes. He pointed out that in some states having similar laws, it has been held that driving with defective brakes is negligence per se, but the Maryland Court of Appeals has held that failure of them to work is not negligence per se.

On the other hand, he said, the Court of Appeals held in another case that failure of brakes to operate does not make out a prima facie, or legally sufficient, case which the driver may defend by showing proper inspection and a sudden failure of them without warning.

However, Judge Harris declared, after counsel for Reagan made out a prima facie case on this point, the defendant corporation did not defend that issue by showing proper inspection and sudden failure.

Under the circumstances, the court found a verdict for the plaintiff.

The jurist noted that Reagan suffered considerable shock, laceration of the frontal region and lacerations of the right cheek, fracture of the right leg, fracture of the bone in his foot and contusions and abrasions.

He was in Sacred Heart Hospital from September 13 until December 30 when he was removed to McKeesport Hospital. A local doctor said that, in his opinion, Reagan has suffered 50 per cent permanent disability.

His medical and hospital expenses amounted to $1,784.07. He has been unable to work since then, and when he will be able to work again is unknown.

Ted Cartmel, 30, of Elizabeth, Pa., was the driver of the truck loaded with roofing compound when the brakes failed in the 800 block of Bedford Street.

The vehicle, at a speed over 50 miles an hour, literally flew over the B&O Railroad crossing and finally came to a crashing stop against the floodwall in the little parking area at the end of the street.

Reagan was pinned in the cab, Cartmel suffered facial injuries, and a 19-year-old hitchhiker, William Mock, of Grand Avenue, had only a cut finger.

The impact was so great the wallet of one of the men was thrown over the flood wall, and into the creek, a distance of about 25 feet.

Miraculously, the truck missed hitting any other car at the six or seven intersecting streets onto Bedford Street.

When ancestors of dogs are of the same breed and are known and recorded, the dogs are said to be pedigreed.

Grace Methodist Plans Song Fest

Grace Methodist Church on Virginia Avenue will conduct its final song fest of the season at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Veterans' Graves Are Decorated

American flags have been placed on the graves of some 1,453 veterans in 25 cemeteries of the Cumberland area.

The graves were decorated by the Graves committees of Fort Cumberland Post No. 1411, American Legion, and Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

William L. Ranck and Vernon Crable are co-chairmen for the Memorial Day activity.

The flags will be removed from the graves next week.

Local Man Issued Dwelling Permit

Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, has issued a permit to Norbert A. Sell, of 600 Lynn Street, who plans to build a home at the intersection of Frederick Street and Welsh Avenue.

Last week the permit was approved by the Zoning Board, which met at City Hall. The brick veneer dwelling at 1154 Frederick Street will front 75 feet on that street and 138 feet on the Avenue.

The $18,000 one-story home will measure 34 feet by 44 feet and will have a concrete block foundation and asbestos shingle roof.

Woman Reports Wallet Stolen

City Police received a report yesterday evening from Mrs. Leonard Holtzman, 517 Linden Street, that a wallet containing between $60 and $80 was taken from her home.

Officer Harold Gibson, who investigated, said the wallet was on a table in the kitchen when it was stolen.

The local police also were informed by Mrs. Robert Powell, 431 Grand Avenue, that an aluminum chair was taken from her porch sometime Monday night.

Another complaint received at Police Headquarters yesterday was from a baby sitter who said she had been locked out of the house by the children she had been watching. Police said the baby sitter got back into the house after a small girl climbed through a window in the rear of the building and unlocked the door.

Cub Pack 23 Obtains Its New Charter

Equity Suits Filed

Two equity suits have been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Hazel V. Skelley vs. Phillip D. Skelley and Richard Martin Bobo vs. Doris Rosalee Bobo.

A New Demand For Excellence

College graduates this year will be more fortunate than those who preceded them last year. Employment opportunities have opened up after the business recession doldrums of 1958, and most graduates from colleges and universities will have little trouble locating their place in the economy.

There will be one difference in the employment situation that the June graduating class will encounter, but it is too late now for the members to prepare for it. That is the exceptionally high premium this year on outstanding abilities. Employers have always, of course, preferred the student at the head of the class to the one at the bottom, but the recession has caused a shrinkage in the employment market compared to the high-flying prosperity years of the early 1950s, and employers can be more choosy in picking those who will join their payrolls.

U. S. Secretary of Labor Mitchell, in an open letter to the 1959 graduating class, placed great emphasis on the young man or woman with the greatest initiative and aptitude. In a survey made by his department, Secretary Mitchell found the "premium on excellence is constantly going up" in every line of endeavor, and the emphasis this year greatly favors those with advanced degrees and exceptional standing in their class.

Many educators will say, "about time," to the renewed interest in the better-than average student. Too long the tendency has been toward a degree for the sake of a piece of paper; too long has the superior student been frowned upon by society as some kind of freak, worthy perhaps of consideration, but never priority. Both of these faults, of course, are the result of labor shortages so acute—particularly in the technical fields—that employers were bidding against one another for employes from student bodies—many of whom were a year or more from graduation.

Employers are still eager to receive their share of personnel fresh from the college campus, but they are less hasty in their acceptance of everyone who walks into their employment offices with a degree in his hand. They now insist that the ability behind the degree be more than the minimum required.

White House Upkeep Now Costs Twice What Truman Spent On It

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The soaring cost of running the White House under Eisenhower as compared with Truman has now been made official by the House Appropriations Committee, as a result of prodding by Congressman Jack Shelley of San Francisco, the Democrat who also gets elected on the Republican ticket.

When this column reported that Ike's White House costs had doubled those of Truman, there were denials on Capitol Hill. However, a study made by the Library of Congress, based on Budget Bureau figures, shows that Truman's costs in 1952 were $3,021,215; Eisenhower's for 1960 will be $5,401,000.

Care and upkeep of the White House and grounds in the last year of Truman were $335,000; the same costs under Ike for 1959 were $515,000. Salaries and expenses of the White House staff total $2,052,000 for 1959 under Eisenhower, which is $168,000 more than under Truman in 1952, and incidentally seven times as much as under Roosevelt in 1940.

"In addition," states the Library of Congress report, "$1,500,000 has been requested for fiscal year 1960 for the services of 101 persons hired for special White House projects. This staff gives assistance to the President on particular problems of public policy.

"The budget for fiscal 1960," continues the report, "asks for $1,055,000 to pay the expenses and salaries of 170 White House police. This amount is seven times the $150,650 provided for in 1938 (under FDR) and nearly twice the $652,000 voted in 1952 (under Truman). Excluded are the police employed for the personal protection of the President and his family."

The present White House budget of approximately $5,000,000, says the Library of Congress study, "does not include the numerous agencies which act in an advisory capacity to the President." Appropriations amounting to $97,226,000 were requested for the entire Executive Office of the President—including the Budget Bureau, Civil Defense, etc.

Not In White House Budget

The Library of Congress listed other services enjoyed by the President, but paid for by the Army, Air Force, and other agencies.

"President Eisenhower has at his disposal a fleet of limousines, planes, helicopters, two cabin cruisers . . . All supported by the federal taxpayers. The air fleet available for the President's use consists of a four-engine Super Constellation, two 6-passenger Aero-Commanders, and a number of helicopters. In addition, three Boeing 707 jet airliners are on order for use of the President, high-ranking officials, and heads of state.

"The Super-Constellation Columbine III . . . cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 . . . The Air Force estimates the per hour cost of running the plane is approximately $711.

"It is reported that at least 20 cars are rented on a regular basis for use by the President and his staff. Additional vehicles are made available when the use arises. The President is reported to have three cars: a recent-model Cadillac, a bubbletop Lincoln costing $30,000, and a Chrysler Imperial equipped with a sliding roof. Two heavily constructed Cadillacs costing about $65,000 each are occupied by Secret Service men who accompany the President. The Army furnishes chauffeurs for this fleet of cars.

"President Eisenhower also has a motorized golf car which cost approximately $1,000. It is driven by a Secret Service man."

The report on presidential expenses spells out the fact that although the yacht Williamsburg was given up by President Eisenhower in 1953, it was tied up at the Washington Navy Yard until 1957. Democratic Congressmen claim it was used during this four-year period for social functions by members of the Cabinet and White House staff, though this was not admitted by the White House.

"In place of the Williamsburg," says the Library of Congress report, "President Eisenhower has the use of two naval vessels, the Barbara Anne and the Susie E., named for his granddaughters. The 92-foot Barbara Anne cost about $140,000 to recondition and the 60-foot Susie E. about $35,000. It is estimated that the Navy spends approximately $60,000 each year for their maintenance."

Father Of Alaskan Senator

Broadway columnist Leonard Lyons, who's celebrating his 25th year in the columning business claims he was responsible for making one of the new Senators from Alaska. When he first proposed writing a Broadway column to Ernest Gruening, then editor of the New York Post, Gruening said:: That kind of a column would never go."

Later when Lyons talked to the Post's business manager, he said: "We'll have to get us a new editor."

Lyons' colum then started in the Post. Gruening shortly became chief of the Territories Division under Roosevelt, then Governor of Alaska for longer than any other man in history, is now one of the first two Alaskan Senators. Gruening and Sen. Bob Bartlett, both Democrats, are the real fathers of Alaskan statehood, but Lyons claims he's the father of one Alaskan Senator.

Congress Bites Congress

For a Congressman to cut Congressmen's budget is like a man biting a dog. Hoverer, Congressman W. F. Norrell of Arkansas and the House Legislative subcommittee will recommend taht Congress reduce its own spending by about $4 million in the next fiscal year, including a cut of $300,000 in stationery allowances for members of Congress. They will also urge greater thrift by all Congressional committees, but increased funds for the Library of Congress.

Red Propaganda System Isn't Always Efficient

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—The spectre of Communist imperialism pursued John Foster Dulles to his grave. Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko arranged to attend the last rites at Washington, but the circumstances that preceded his departure from Geneva reveal how the monolithic system of the Soviets works even when simple amenities and international courtesies are involved.

When the news of the death of the former Secretary of State came, the British and the French foreign ministers had no hesitation in announcing that they would attend the funeral. Foreign Minister Gromyko was silent. He had to consult his government, and it took 24 hours because Premier Khrushchev was traveling near Albania.

Finally permission came, but Gromyko, who first indicated he might travel on Secretary Herter's plane, found upon inquiry that there was only one vacant seat. The Soviet foreign minister sought two extra seats for his aides. When this couldn't be arranged, Mr. Gromyko decided to go on a commercial plane. Neither the British nor French foreign secretaries had to take anyone along.

Why did the Soviet foreign minister pass up an opportunity to sit down in privacy with the foreign ministers of Britain and France and the Secretary of State of the United States? The answer is that he is not permitted to travel unaccompanied. He had to have a place for his No. 2 man. That's the Soviet method of watching everyone who occupies any post of importance under the dictator.

As for the return journey to Geneva, Secretary Herter arranged to have Mr. Gromyko, together with a Soviet adviser, ride with him on his plane.

There has been some suggestio that, if the four foreign ministers could sit down together away from the large number of persons who usually attend the formal sessions here, some real progress might be made in the negotiations. Certainly on an airplane, with so few individuals present and no reporters or photographers waiting at the door, it might be imagined that the Soviet foreign minister would grab the chance for a candid discussion. But he operates under strict instructions from the Premier. He can't even go to a social function alone. He is under constant observation. For, in the Soviet Union's hierarchy, nobody trusts anybody else.

Perhaps the real significance in the avoidance by Mr. Gromyko of a private session on the plane lies in the fact that the Soviet government was not yet ready for any really private confabs. They apparently had a purpose in prolonging the speechmaking here. The Soviets now say they will get down to brass tacks on Friday. They have delayed negotiations, believing the West would become impatient and that an agreement on some specific point might thereby be reached which would be sufficient to "justify" a "summit" meeting.

One of the purposes in the deliberate delay also has been to give time for propagandizing behind the Iron Curtain and especially in East Germany, where the Soviet radio stations are making a big play of the idea that there is to be a peace treaty granting "independence" to the so-called German Democratic Republic.

The Soviet propaganda doesn't always work efficiently. The East German stations, upon hearing of the death of former Secretary Dulles, issued long tirades of abuse about him. The Soviet stations themselves were silent for a while and then gave a bit of praise to Mr. Dulles as an individual. But in recounting his biography, they emphasized his career as a lawyer for large corporations—as if this could possibly have any bearing on the career being reviewed.

This contradiction between the East German and Soviet stations didn't last long, but it illustrates the difficulty the Soviets have in co-ordinating their many outlets of comment. Usually they delay a long time before issuing any statements on delicate subjects of international importance, and in this instance there was a delay of several hours before the Moscow radio stations got the word as to how they were to treat the news of the death of Mr. Dulles. So, to the last, the hand of the Communist tyrant—against the spread of whose influence in the free world Mr. Dulles fought so valiantly—reached out to make sure that even in death the former Secretary of State would not score any propaganda advantage in the minds of the people behind the Iron Curtain.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

The multi-million dollar marble building that the Senate built so its members could have additional office space continues to evoke gasps of amazement as the costs become public. Some economy-minded Senators are making speeches against the mistakes and extravagances almost daily.

Originally, the building was equipped with rubber tile flooring at a cost of $100,000. However, the lady secretaries and clerical help found it difficult to walk on the stuff with their high heels, and they weren't about to give those up.

So the Capitol architect consulted with the Senate committee in charge of the building and it was decided to carpet the offices, maybe. This would cost another $150,000.

But now, if there is to be carpeting, some 600 doors of the 42 office suites won't open or close properly. About one-half inch will have to be shaved off the bottom of each of the beautiful, highly polished walnut doors, and then the bottoms will have to be refinished. A few of the doors are made of metal, and these will have to be ground down.

However, do not be too concerned. The cost will come out of a $750,000 contingency fund which the Senate established for little unforeseen expenses like these.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

These men are a new breed. They are branch office stock brokers. There are thousands of them in such places as Sacramento and Salem and Seattle and San Antonio and Salt Lake City. They work for a ribbon of paper with numbers on it. They count their customers in the millions.

Stocks used to be the province of paunchy men with black cigars. It isn't. They lost Wall Street in 1929. Now it belongs to the people. Little people, big people, the old, the newlyweds, the bus driver, the policeman, the widow all own a few shares.

Charles Savage is a symbol of the branch office broker. He runs the Red Bank, N. J. office for Eisele & King, Libaire, Stout and Co. of 50 Broadway, New York. He is short and stocky, a man of 58 with a little snow on top and shell-rim glasses. His little office turns over about $10,000,000 in buy and sell orders each year, and the Red Bank office is only one of 11 branches of the Eisele King organization.

The office is about 30 feet by 20. There are three rows of round-backed chairs for the customers. These have cushions. There are a few oil paintings on the walls. The windows are draped in monks cloth. Up front there is a blackboard. A young man, Lee Terwilliger, watches the lighted moving ticker tape on top of the board and, with chalk, jots the latest prices of stocks on the New York Exchange and the American Exchange.

Customers watch from the chairs. A few rub their chins. One turns to Stanley Jacobs, assistant manager, and orders three hundred shares of W. R. Grace, the steamship people. At the market, this will cost him about $14,500. A phone rings and Savage picks it up. A woman on Newman Springs Road wants ten shares of General Development. This will cost about $220.

The orders to buy, to sell, come in all day. The moving tape writes, and having writ, moves off the screen. Savage can quote, almost without checking, 140 stocks. These are the most active. In a day, he will phone 75 neighborhood customers — not to counsel them about buying — but to let them know how their stocks are doing. "Hello, Jack," he will says to Jack Sullivan of Spring Lake, "I just want you to know that your New York Central is holding firm at 27, and the market opened this morning a little mixed.

"Industrials are about two points off. Thank you."

Savage started as a railroad telegrapher, became a brokerage telegrapher back in the days when the news was flashed from coast to coast by dot and dash, and worked his way up to manager. He earns about $15,000 a year, plus about $2,000 from his own conservative investments.

He has 3,400 accounts in the little towns around his office. At least once a day, he calls the big boss — George J. Scully — at the home office with a report on branch office business. He talks swiftly, like Walter Winchell, and he doodles with a pencil as he talks.

At home, he has a wife, two sons, and nearby, a best friend named Al Owen, who takes him deep sea fishing every Saturday in a boat called Alice. He attends church every Sunday, not for appearance's sake, but because he doesn't want to break a lifelong record.

Like most brokers in old houses, he advises against get-rich-quick schemes. He advises small investors to dabble in strong, conservative stocks. Savage thinks that the stock market today is much better than in the old days because now everybody is in the act and Eisele King even has a time payment plan. You put in $300, plus $25 a month, and you build a nest egg.

Mr. Savage likes to tell about General Motors as an example. If you had put $300 in that stock in January 1933, plus $25 a month, and had turned all dividends back into more stock, you would have had $65,090.50 in December, 1957. All it would have cost you is $7,500.

In those years, I think I owed that much. . .

These Days

Money Talks

The reason that labor leaders are so haughty is that money talks. They have the money and they have the votes and the politicians are scared of the smallest of them. The hospital strike in New York is a case in point. The union demands recognition, which as a practical matter means enforced union dues, eventually the closed shop and the check-off. Those who collect money for charity, do not collect it to enrich labor leaders and to give them expense accounts. If the non-professional worker is underpaid, he should be paid more, but there is no need for shop stewards, labor leaders, and grafters.

Two courts issued injunctions against the union which ignored court orders. It is like James Hoffa's notice to Congress that if it passed legislation that displeased him, he would call a nationwide strike. After the threats had had enough time to accomplish whatever Hoffa desired them to accomplish, he withdrew his threats, denied that he had said them, and in the course of the denial, obliquely made the same threats.

In effect, what Hoffa implies is that he is bigger and more powerful than the Congress of the United States. And it may be so. Again it is money that talks. It is votes that talk. So many members of the Congress get their campaign support, above the table or under the table, from labor leaders and labor unions that they vote as they are told to vote just as in the early 20th century, there were United States Senators who obeyed J. P. Morgan and John D. Rockefeller, the two leaders of predatory businessmen.

And as these businessmen, in time, lost their heads, became too sure of themselves and encountered an aroused public opinion, so the new kind of labor leader, a selfish, predatory person, who manages a huge treasury and who fights to keep his membership intact and the dues coming in, is losing his head, too. There is only one phrase which correctly characterizes these kinds of labor leaders: they are too fresh. They believe that they can dominate the whole American people. They will, of course, fail, as their prototypes in Wall Street have failed. Americans generally rebel against Masters and Bosses.

The danger is not so much that the labor leaders will succeed in dominating the United States as it is that we shall, in a most critical time in our history, become involved in dangerous strikes and contentions which can affect the course of events by making this a defenseless nation. The hospital strike in New York is dramatic, but a steel strike at the present time would be a tragedy. It could have the effect of sending the dollar further down in value.

Even the labor leaders need to worry about that before a sufficiently wicked inflation could drop the value of the dollar to the verge of worthlessness. Apparently, the labor leader's personal desire to remain in a lucrative office is so great that he takes risks which even peril that job. And in this unseemly and disastrous business, he is only too often supported by politicians whose only gift is the garrulousness of the extrovert. Inflation can bring here, as it has elsewhere in the world, the man on horseback, the politician who promises too much and thrives only by suppressing the rights of the people.

Such labor leaders as George Meany, Walter Reuther, David Dubinsky and other top men, must recognize what money riches has done to their movement. But they are helpless because of the frightening pressures of such men as James Hoffa who can control any union he chooses to control through the instrumentality of the strike.

If Hoffa opposes a union, his truckmen will make deliveries, will cross picket lines, will thereby assist the employer in breaking a strike. If Hoffa wishes to refuse to cross a picket line or to conduct a secondary boycott, he can tie up an entire city. He and Harry Bridges can tie up the entire transportation system of this nation, force every industry to stop work because they can hold up shipments into and out of all plants.

No human being in this country should have that much power and a government which tolerates abuse only paves the way for its own destruction.

Bee-Sting Desensitization, And Insect Phobias

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Persistence paid dividends for a beekeeper who developed a severe reaction whenever stung by one of her "employes." She started wheezing whenever she inhaled dust around old hives, and shock occurred when she was stung.

Her physician suggested desensitization with a vaccine made from the honey bee extract although he made no promises. She received three shots in the arm every week for a year. She was stung by a bee a year later and went into shock within two to three minutes.

She was not discouraged and insisted upon another series of injections. A year later she was stung again and went into shock. Most of us might have given up at that but her confidence was unshaken. Her physician then decided to prepare an extract from the entire insect, on the premise that she might be allergic to some protein that was not contained in the venom.

She was stung six months later, before she was completely protected. One hive developed but there was no shock and no asthma. We can understand why this woman was desperate in her search for a cure. (Dr. Van Dellen has a leaflet on stinging insects that he will send if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies letter.)

This subject leads to insect phobias. Some persons are positive their homes or clothing are riddled with bugs. Every speck of dust, lint, or dirt on the bed or table linens or their clothes is confused with mites or other parasites. Skin rashes due to allergies or contact dermatitis will be blamed on insects.

While a hive may arise whenever a sting occurs, there are commoner causes of these swellings. These phobic persons give the exterminators a hard time by insisting that the home or office be sprayed repeatedly to eliminate the ghost insects.

YOUNG FOR MIGRAINE

Mrs. W. writes: My 4 year old grandson gets headaches twice a month. He turns pale and pounds his head during these attacks. The doctor says it is a form of migraine, and gives him pills. Isn't it unusual for a child that age to have migraine?

REPLY

Children develop migraine but the condition is unusual enough to warrant a consultation.

NO ACID

C. M. writes: Is pernicious anemia due to an acid condition of the stomach?

REPLY

No. As a rule, the opposite condition exists — there is no free hydrochloric acid in the stomach. It is agreed generally that pernicious anemia is caused by a deficiency of a substance in the wall of the stomach. As a result, the absorption of vitamin B12 in food cannot proceed normally.

COLON GROWTHS

B. H. writes: How does a diverticulum differ from a polyp in the colon?

REPLY

A diverticulum is a small pocket in the wall of the colon, whereas a polyp is a tumor that looks like a miniature punching bag that protrudes from the intestinal passageway.

LEG HAIR

Mrs. J. O. writes: Would the diet have anything to do with a heavy growth of hair on my legs?

REPLY

No. Hair growth is more closely associated with heredity and the state of the glandular system than with diet.

SHUFFLING GAIT

J. P. writes: Is there any cure for locomotor ataxia?

REPLY

There is no cure but the condition (tabes dorsalis) may be improved through treating the underlying cause of this disease of the nervous system (syphilis).

WHEEZING FROM SMOKE

M. J. writes: I've had asthma for three years. Recently my husband stopped smoking when he had the flu and my wheezing stopped. When he started puffing on cigarets again, my asthma returned. What do you think of this situation?

REPLY

I try to avoid family arguments but must say your husband has a good reason to quit smoking. Ask him to stop temporarily and you will have proved something if your wheezing disappears for a second time.

VEIN CLOTS

J. D. writes: After a blood clot heals, is it advisable to remove the varicosed vein in which it formed?

REPLY

Not if the clot plugged the vein and put it out of business. When a clot forms in a vein and obstructs it, scar tissue forms and the vein ceases to function. On the other hand, removal is advised if the clot originates in a vein, escapes into the blood, and travels to the lungs.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A New Yorker, eager to test his luck, flew to Las Vegas and taxied to a hotel on the "Strip." He handed the driver a $20 bill and said, "I hope you can give me change for this." The driver shot a scornful look at his passenger and explained, "Out here, Brother, a double-sawbuck IS change."

An airline statistician has traced the first recorded air cargo fleet. In 990 A.D. the Caliph of Cairo craved fresh cherries. The Vizier of Baalbek, 400 miles away, seeking a favorable treaty, heard of the Caliph's craving, and shipped the cream of his cherry crop by air, neatly fastened to the legs of 600 carrier pigeons!

Did you hear about the very correctly brought-up 6-year-old little girl who wouldn't read Doctor Seuss' popular "The Cat in the Hat!" "I'm sure I wouldn't like it," she said primly. "It's full of those three-letter words!"

A New Demand For Excellence

College graduates this year will be more fortunate than those who preceded them last year. Employment opportunities have opened up after the business recession doldrums of 1958, and most graduates from colleges and universities will have little trouble locating their place in the economy.

There will be one difference in the employment situation that the June graduating class will encounter, but it is too late now for the members to prepare for it. That is the exceptionally high premium this year on outstanding abilities. Employers have always, of course, preferred the student at the head of the class to the one at the bottom, but the recession has caused a shrinkage in the employment market compared to the high-flying prosperity years of the early 1950s, and employers can be more choosy in picking those who will join their payrolls.

U. S. Secretary of Labor Mitchell, in an open letter to the 1959 graduating class, placed great emphasis on the young man or woman with the greatest initiative and aptitude. In a survey made by his department, Secretary Mitchell found the "premium on excellence is constantly going up" in every line of endeavor, and the emphasis this year greatly favors those with advanced degrees and exceptional standing in their class.

Many educators will say, "about time," to the renewed interest in the better-than average student. Too long the tendency has been toward a degree for the sake of a piece of paper; too long has the superior student been frowned upon by society as some kind of freak, worthy perhaps of consideration, but never priority. Both of these faults, of course, are the result of labor shortages so acute—particularly in the technical fields—that employers were bidding against one another for employes from student bodies—many of whom were a year or more from graduation.

Employers are still eager to receive their share of personnel fresh from the college campus, but they are less hasty in their acceptance of everyone who walks into their employment offices with a degree in his hand. They now insist that the ability behind the degree be more than the minimum required.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Money Talks

The reason that labor leaders are so haughty is that money talks. They have the money and they have the votes and the politicians are scared of the smallest of them. The hospital strike in New York is a case in point. The union demands recognition, which as a practical matter means enforced union dues, eventually the closed shop and the check-off. Those who collect money for charity, do not collect it to enrich labor leaders and to give them expense accounts. If the nonprofessional worker is underpaid, he should be paid more, but there is no need for shop stewards, labor leaders, and grafters.

Two courts issued injunctions against the union which ignored court orders. It is like James Hoffa's notice to Congress that if it passed legislation that displeased him, he would call a nationwide strike. After the threats had had enough time to accomplish whatever Hoffa desired them to accomplish, he withdrew his threats, denied that he had said them, and in the course of the denial, obliquely made the same threats.

In effect, what Hoffa implies is that he is bigger and more powerful than the Congress of the United States. And it may be so. Again it is money that talks. It is votes that talk. So many members of the Congress get their campaign support, above the table or under the table, from labor leaders and labor unions that they vote as they are told to vote just as in the early 20th century, there were United States Senators who obeyed J. P. Morgan and John D. Rockefeller, the two leaders of predatory businessmen.

And as these businessmen, in time, lost their heads, became too sure of themselves and encountered an aroused public opinion, so the new kind of labor leader, a selfish, predatory person, who manages a huge treasury and who fights to keep his membership intact and the dues coming in, is losing his head, too. There is only one phrase which correctly characterizes these kinds of labor leaders: they are too fresh. They believe that they can dominate the whole American people. They will, of course, fail, as their prototypes in Wall Street have failed. Americans generally rebel against Masters and Bosses.

The danger is not so much that the labor leaders will succeed in dominating the United States as it is that we shall, in a most critical time in our history, become involved in dangerous strikes and contentions which can affect the course of events by making this a defenseless nation. The hospital strike in New York is dramatic, but a steel strike at the present time would be a tragedy. It could have the effect of sending the dollar further down in value.

Even the labor leaders need to worry about that before a sufficiently wicked inflation could drop the value of the dollar to the verge of worthlessness. Apparently, the labor leader's personal desire to remain in a lucrative office is so great that he takes risks which even peril that job. And in this unseemly and disastrous business, he is only too often supported by politicians whose only gift is the garrulousness of the extrovert. Inflation can bring here, as it has elsewhere in the world, the man on horseback, the politician who promises too much and thrives only by suppressing the rights of the people.

Such labor leaders as George Meany, Walter Reuther, David Dubinsky and other top men, must recognize what money riches has done to their movement. But they are helpless because of the frightening pressures of such men as James Hoffa who can control any union he chooses to control through the instrumentality of the strike.

If Hoffa opposes a union, his truckmen will make deliveries, will cross picket lines, will thereby assist the employer in breaking a strike. If Hoffa wishes to refuse to cross a picket line or to conduct a secondary boycott, he can tie up an entire city. He and Harry Bridges can tie up the entire transportation system of this nation, force every industry to stop work because they can hold up shipments into and out of all plants.

No human being in this country should have that much power and a government which tolerates abuse only paves the way for its own destruction.

White House Upkeep Now Costs Twice What Truman Spent On It

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The soaring cost of running the White House under Eisenhower as compared with Truman has now been made official by the House Appropriations Committee, as a result of prodding by Congressman Jack Shelley of San Francisco, the Democrat who also gets elected on the Republican ticket.

When this column reported that Ike's White House costs had doubled those of Truman, there were denials on Capitol Hill. However, a study made by the Library of Congress, based on Budget Bureau figures, shows that Truman's costs in 1952 were $3,021,215; Eisenhower's for 1960 will be $5,401,000.

Care and upkeep of the White House and grounds in the last year of Truman were $335,000; the same costs under Ike for 1959 were $515,000. Salaries and expenses of the White House staff total $2,052,000 for 1959 under Eisenhower, which is $168,000 more than under Truman in 1952, and incidentally seven times as much as under Roosevelt in 1940.

"In addition," states the Library of Congress report, "$1,500,000 has been requested for fiscal year 1960 for the services of 101 persons hired for special White House projects. This staff gives assistance to the President on particular problems of public policy.

"The budget for fiscal 1960," continues the report, "asks for $1,055,000 to pay the expenses and salaries of 170 White House police. This amount is seven times the $150,650 provided for in 1938 (under FDR) and nearly twice the $652,000 voted in 1952 (under Truman). Excluded are the police employed for the personal protection of the President and his family."

The present White House budget of approximately $5,000,000, says the Library of Congress study, "does not include the numerous agencies which act in an advisory capacity to the President." Appropriations amounting to $97,226,000 were requested for the entire Executive Office of the President—including the Budget Bureau, Civil Defense, etc.

Not In White House Budget

The Library of Congress listed other services enjoyed by the President, but paid for by the Army, Air Force, and other agencies.

"President Eisenhower has at his disposal a fleet of limousines, planes, helicopters, two cabin cruisers . . . All supported by the federal taxpayers. The air fleet available for the President's use consists of a four-engine Super Constellation, two 6-passenger Aero-Commanders, and a number of helicopters. In addition, three Boeing 707 jet airliners are on order for use of the President, high-ranking officials, and heads of state.

"The Super-Constellation Columbine III . . . cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000 . . . The Air Force estimates the per hour cost of running the plane is approximately $711.

"It is reported that at least 20 cars are rented on a regular basis for use by the President and his staff. Additional vehicles are made available when the use arises. The President is reported to have three cars: a recent-model Cadillac, a bubbletop Lincoln costing $30,000, and a Chrysler Imperial equipped with a sliding roof. Two heavily constructed Cadillacs costing about $65,000 each are occupied by Secret Service men who accompany the President. The Army furnishes chauffeurs for this fleet of cars.

"President Eisenhower also has a motorized golf car which cost approximately $1,000. It is driven by a Secret Service man."

The report on presidential expenses spells out the fact that although the yacht Williamsburg was given up by President Eisenhower in 1953, it was tied up at the Washington Navy Yard until 1957. Democratic Congressmen claim it was used during this four-year period for social functions by members of the Cabinet and White House staff, though this was not admitted by the White House.

"In place of the Williamsburg," says the Library of Congress report, "President Eisenhower has the use of two naval vessels, the Barbara Anne and the Susie E., named for his granddaughters. The 92-foot Barbara Anne cost about $140,000 to recondition and the 60-foot Susie E. about $35,000. It is estimated that the Navy spends approximately $60,000 each year for their maintenance."

Father Of Alaskan Senator

Broadway columnist Leonard Lyons, who's celebrating his 25th year in the columning business claims he was responsible for making one of the new Senators from Alaska. When he first proposed writing a Broadway column to Ernest Gruening, then editor of the New York Post, Gruening said:: That kind of a column would never go."

Later when Lyons talked to the Post's business manager, he said: "We'll have to get us a new editor."

Lyons' colum then started in the Post. Gruening shortly became chief of the Territories Division under Roosevelt, then Governor of Alaska for longer than any other man in history, is now one of the first two Alaskan Senators. Gruening and Sen. Bob Bartlett, both Democrats, are the real fathers of Alaskan statehood, but Lyons claims he's the father of one Alaskan Senator.

Congress Bites Congress

For a Congressman to cut Congressmen's budget is like a man biting a dog. Hoverer, Congressman W. F. Norrell of Arkansas and the House Legislative subcommittee will recommend taht Congress reduce its own spending by about $4 million in the next fiscal year, including a cut of $300,000 in stationery allowances for members of Congress. They will also urge greater thrift by all Congressional committees, but increased funds for the Library of Congress.

Red Propaganda System Isn't Always Efficient

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—The spectre of Communist imperialism pursued John Foster Dulles to his grave. Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko arranged to attend the last rites at Washington, but the circumstances that preceded his departure from Geneva reveal how the monolithic system of the Soviets works even when simple amenities and international courtesies are involved.

When the news of the death of the former Secretary of State came, the British and the French foreign ministers had no hesitation in announcing that they would attend the funeral. Foreign Minister Gromyko was silent. He had to consult his government, and it took 24 hours because Premier Khrushchev was traveling near Albania.

Finally permission came, but Gromyko, who first indicated he might travel on Secretary Herter's plane, found upon inquiry that there was only one vacant seat. The Soviet foreign minister sought two extra seats for his aides. When this couldn't be arranged, Mr. Gromyko decided to go on a commercial plane. Neither the British nor French foreign secretaries had to take anyone along.

Why did the Soviet foreign minister pass up an opportunity to sit down in privacy with the foreign ministers of Britain and France and the Secretary of State of the United States? The answer is that he is not permitted to travel unaccompanied. He had to have a place for his No. 2 man. That's the Soviet method of watching everyone who occupies any post of importance under the dictator.

As for the return journey to Geneva, Secretary Herter arranged to have Mr. Gromyko, together with a Soviet adviser, ride with him on his plane.

There has been some suggestio that, if the four foreign ministers could sit down together away from the large number of persons who usually attend the formal sessions here, some real progress might be made in the negotiations. Certainly on an airplane, with so few individuals present and no reporters or photographers waiting at the door, it might be imagined that the Soviet foreign minister would grab the chance for a candid discussion. But he operates under strict instructions from the Premier. He can't even go to a social function alone. He is under constant observation. For, in the Soviet Union's hierarchy, nobody trusts anybody else.

Perhaps the real significance in the avoidance by Mr. Gromyko of a private session on the plane lies in the fact that the Soviet government was not yet ready for any really private confabs. They apparently had a purpose in prolonging the speechmaking here. The Soviets now say they will get down to brass tacks on Friday. They have delayed negotiations, believing the West would become impatient and that an agreement on some specific point might thereby be reached which would be sufficient to "justify" a "summit" meeting.

One of the purposes in the deliberate delay also has been to give time for propagandizing behind the Iron Curtain and especially in East Germany, where the Soviet radio stations are making a big play of the idea that there is to be a peace treaty granting "independence" to the so-called German Democratic Republic.

The Soviet propaganda doesn't always work efficiently. The East German stations, upon hearing of the death of former Secretary Dulles, issued long tirades of abuse about him. The Soviet stations themselves were silent for a while and then gave a bit of praise to Mr. Dulles as an individual. But in recounting his biography, they emphasized his career as a lawyer for large corporations—as if this could possibly have any bearing on the career being reviewed.

This contradiction between the East German and Soviet stations didn't last long, but it illustrates the difficulty the Soviets have in co-ordinating their many outlets of comment. Usually they delay a long time before issuing any statements on delicate subjects of international importance, and in this instance there was a delay of several hours before the Moscow radio stations got the word as to how they were to treat the news of the death of Mr. Dulles. So, to the last, the hand of the Communist tyrant—against the spread of whose influence in the free world Mr. Dulles fought so valiantly—reached out to make sure that even in death the former Secretary of State would not score any propaganda advantage in the minds of the people behind the Iron Curtain.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

The multi-million dollar marble building that the Senate built so its members could have additional office space continues to evoke gasps of amazement as the costs become public. Some economy-minded Senators are making speeches against the mistakes and extravagances almost daily.

Originally, the building was equipped with rubber tile flooring at a cost of $100,000. However, the lady secretaries and clerical help found it difficult to walk on the stuff with their high heels, and they weren't about to give those up.

So the Capitol architect consulted with the Senate committee in charge of the building and it was decided to carpet the offices, maybe. This would cost another $150,000.

But now, if there is to be carpeting, some 600 doors of the 42 office suites won't open or close properly. About one-half inch will have to be shaved off the bottom of each of the beautiful, highly polished walnut doors, and then the bottoms will have to be refinished. A few of the doors are made of metal, and these will have to be ground down.

However, do not be too concerned. The cost will come out of a $750,000 contingency fund which the Senate established for little unforeseen expenses like these.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

These men are a new breed. They are branch office stock brokers. There are thousands of them in such places as Sacramento and Salem and Seattle and San Antonio and Salt Lake City. They work for a ribbon of paper with numbers on it. They count their customers in the millions.

Stocks used to be the province of paunchy men with black cigars. It isn't. They lost Wall Street in 1929. Now it belongs to the people. Little people, big people, the old, the newlyweds, the bus driver, the policeman, the widow all own a few shares.

Charles Savage is a symbol of the branch office broker. He runs the Red Bank, N. J. office for Eisele & King, Libaire, Stout and Co. of 50 Broadway, New York. He is short and stocky, a man of 58 with a little snow on top and shell-rim glasses. His little office turns over about $10,000,000 in buy and sell orders each year, and the Red Bank office is only one of 11 branches of the Eisele King organization.

The office is about 30 feet by 20. There are three rows of round-backed chairs for the customers. These have cushions. There are a few oil paintings on the walls. The windows are draped in monks cloth. Up front there is a blackboard. A young man, Lee Terwilliger, watches the lighted moving ticker tape on top of the board and, with chalk, jots the latest prices of stocks on the New York Exchange and the American Exchange.

Customers watch from the chairs. A few rub their chins. One turns to Stanley Jacobs, assistant manager, and orders three hundred shares of W. R. Grace, the steamship people. At the market, this will cost him about $14,500. A phone rings and Savage picks it up. A woman on Newman Springs Road wants ten shares of General Development. This will cost about $220.

The orders to buy, to sell, come in all day. The moving tape writes, and having writ, moves off the screen. Savage can quote, almost without checking, 140 stocks. These are the most active. In a day, he will phone 75 neighborhood customers — not to counsel them about buying — but to let them know how their stocks are doing. "Hello, Jack," he will says to Jack Sullivan of Spring Lake, "I just want you to know that your New York Central is holding firm at 27, and the market opened this morning a little mixed.

"Industrials are about two points off. Thank you."

Savage started as a railroad telegrapher, became a brokerage telegrapher back in the days when the news was flashed from coast to coast by dot and dash, and worked his way up to manager. He earns about $15,000 a year, plus about $2,000 from his own conservative investments.

He has 3,400 accounts in the little towns around his office. At least once a day, he calls the big boss — George J. Scully — at the home office with a report on branch office business. He talks swiftly, like Walter Winchell, and he doodles with a pencil as he talks.

At home, he has a wife, two sons, and nearby, a best friend named Al Owen, who takes him deep sea fishing every Saturday in a boat called Alice. He attends church every Sunday, not for appearance's sake, but because he doesn't want to break a lifelong record.

Like most brokers in old houses, he advises against get-rich-quick schemes. He advises small investors to dabble in strong, conservative stocks. Savage thinks that the stock market today is much better than in the old days because now everybody is in the act and Eisele King even has a time payment plan. You put in $300, plus $25 a month, and you build a nest egg.

Mr. Savage likes to tell about General Motors as an example. If you had put $300 in that stock in January 1933, plus $25 a month, and had turned all dividends back into more stock, you would have had $65,090.50 in December, 1957. All it would have cost you is $7,500.

In those years, I think I owed that much. . .

Bee-Sting Desensitization, And Insect Phobias

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Persistence paid dividends for a beekeeper who developed a severe reaction whenever stung by one of her "employes." She started wheezing whenever she inhaled dust around old hives, and shock occurred when she was stung.

Her physician suggested desensitization with a vaccine made from the honey bee extract although he made no promises. She received three shots in the arm every week for a year. She was stung by a bee a year later and went into shock within two to three minutes.

She was not discouraged and insisted upon another series of injections. A year later she was stung again and went into shock. Most of us might have given up at that but her confidence was unshaken. Her physician then decided to prepare an extract from the entire insect, on the premise that she might be allergic to some protein that was not contained in the venom.

She was stung six months later, before she was completely protected. One hive developed but there was no shock and no asthma. We can understand why this woman was desperate in her search for a cure. (Dr. Van Dellen has a leaflet on stinging insects that he will send if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies letter.)

This subject leads to insect phobias. Some persons are positive their homes or clothing are riddled with bugs. Every speck of dust, lint, or dirt on the bed or table linens or their clothes is confused with mites or other parasites. Skin rashes due to allergies or contact dermatitis will be blamed on insects.

While a hive may arise whenever a sting occurs, there are commoner causes of these swellings. These phobic persons give the exterminators a hard time by insisting that the home or office be sprayed repeatedly to eliminate the ghost insects.

YOUNG FOR MIGRAINE

Mrs. W. writes: My 4 year old grandson gets headaches twice a month. He turns pale and pounds his head during these attacks. The doctor says it is a form of migraine, and gives him pills. Isn't it unusual for a child that age to have migraine?

REPLY

Children develop migraine but the condition is unusual enough to warrant a consultation.

NO ACID

C. M. writes: Is pernicious anemia due to an acid condition of the stomach?

REPLY

No. As a rule, the opposite condition exists — there is no free hydrochloric acid in the stomach. It is agreed generally that pernicious anemia is caused by a deficiency of a substance in the wall of the stomach. As a result, the absorption of vitamin B12 in food cannot proceed normally.

COLON GROWTHS

B. H. writes: How does a diverticulum differ from a polyp in the colon?

REPLY

A diverticulum is a small pocket in the wall of the colon, whereas a polyp is a tumor that looks like a miniature punching bag that protrudes from the intestinal passageway.

LEG HAIR

Mrs. J. O. writes: Would the diet have anything to do with a heavy growth of hair on my legs?

REPLY

No. Hair growth is more closely associated with heredity and the state of the glandular system than with diet.

SHUFFLING GAIT

J. P. writes: Is there any cure for locomotor ataxia?

REPLY

There is no cure but the condition (tabes dorsalis) may be improved through treating the underlying cause of this disease of the nervous system (syphilis).

WHEEZING FROM SMOKE

M. J. writes: I've had asthma for three years. Recently my husband stopped smoking when he had the flu and my wheezing stopped. When he started puffing on cigarets again, my asthma returned. What do you think of this situation?

REPLY

I try to avoid family arguments but must say your husband has a good reason to quit smoking. Ask him to stop temporarily and you will have proved something if your wheezing disappears for a second time.

VEIN CLOTS

J. D. writes: After a blood clot heals, is it advisable to remove the varicosed vein in which it formed?

REPLY

Not if the clot plugged the vein and put it out of business. When a clot forms in a vein and obstructs it, scar tissue forms and the vein ceases to function. On the other hand, removal is advised if the clot originates in a vein, escapes into the blood, and travels to the lungs.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

A New Yorker, eager to test his luck, flew to Las Vegas and taxied to a hotel on the "Strip." He handed the driver a $20 bill and said, "I hope you can give me change for this." The driver shot a scornful look at his passenger and explained, "Out here, Brother, a double-sawbuck IS change."

Cumberland Schools Announce 1959 Grid Schedules

15 Contests Are Slated At Stadium

LaSalle And Fort Hill To Launch Season Sept. 11

Cumberland high school football coaches met last night and agreed on the dates for 15 contests to be staged at Fort Hill Stadium during the 1959 season.

William P. Hahn, Fort Hill; Edward J. Schwarz, Allegany and Don Harden, of LaSalle, were the mentors in attendance at the annual session held to avoid a conflict of dates in home games.

LaSalle and Fort Hill will have the honor of clashing in the first game of the season at the stadium for the fourth straight year. They are slated to kick off the lid Friday, September 11.

Trojans Replace Delone

Brother Thomas, athletic director of LaSalle, announced that the Explorers will play 10 games and there is only one change from last year. That's the replacing of Delone Catholic, McSherrystown, Pa., with St. Francis High School, of Morgantown, W. Va., Sept. 18. LaSalle's last engagement with St. Francis was in 1955 when the Trojans won, 19-14.

Six of LaSalle's games are at home, four being billed for Friday nights and two on Saturday nights.

Coach Edward J. Schwarz of Allegany announced that the Campers will play seven games at home and three contests away. Six games are with CVAL opponents.

Romney On AHS Card

Romney High is the only new opponent on the Camper schedule and replaces Moorefield High School. The Pioneers will play here Saturday, Nov. 14.

Allegany will play their first two games away from home before meeting Keyser here Friday, Oct. 2.

Coach Hahn has only nine games listed for Fort Hill but he is dickering for another contest to fill an open date in October or November. Like Allegany, the Sentinels will play six games in the Cumberland Valley Athletic League.

Valdes To Test Alonzo Johnson In Garden Bout

Latter Has Scored 11 Straight Wins

NEW YORK (UPI)—Big Nino Valdes, Cuban heavyweight contender, is favored at 9-5 to snap young Alonzo Johnson's winning streak Friday night at Madison Square Garden and win his first important bout on the comeback trail.

Their 10-rounder, to be televised and broadcast nationally by NBC, features an all-heavyweight show displaying 3,750 pounds of beef.

Valdes, slenderized until he packs only about 210 pounds on his six-foot-three frame, gets his first real test since Charley Powell, the former football player, stopped him in the eighth round at Miami Beach, March 4. The Cuban was over-stuffed at 224 for Powell.

Friday night, 34-year-old Valdes tackles 24-year-old Johnson of Braddock, Pa., who is rocketing toward the rankings with 11 straight victories. He won 15 of his 16 starts and lost one decision. He registered five knockouts.

This year the former National Amateur light heavyweight champion won decisions over Charley Forest, Jimmy Slade and Billy Hunter. Alonzo, a six-footer, will weigh about 187 pounds.

Goalby Shoots Record 64 In Kentucky Golf

Vossler Posts 66 In The Derby Open

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Bob Goalby, a 28-year-old professional from Crystal Rivers, Fla., used only 24 putts Thursday firing a 7-under-par 64 for a new record in the first round of the Kentucky Derby Open golf tournament.

The 6-foot, 195-pound Goalby came home with a 31-33 late in the day, after Ernie Vossler of Midland, Texas, finished with 34-32—66. Vossler's score was good for second place.

Seven players tied for third with 69s and 8 had 70s over Seneca golf course. Defending champion Gary Player of Johannesburg, South Africa, shot a 72.

Ninety-four golfers toured the course in the first of 4 daily 18-hole rounds.

Tied for third were Frank Belay of Canton, Ohio; Leo Biagetti of St. Paul, Minn.; Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Texas; Bob Wolfe, Salton Sea, Calif.; Stan Hobert, Phoenix Ariz.; Buddy Sullivan, Yuba City, Calif., and Doug Ford, Paradise, Fla.

Nationalist China Is Expelled From Olympic Movement

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—In a surprise move, the International Olympic Committee expelled Nationalist China from the Olympic movement Thursday and opened the door for the re-admission of the Chinese Communists.

Avery Brundage, the American president of the IOC, announced the organization had voted "almost unanimously" to expel the Chinese Nationalist Olympic Committee on the grounds that it "no longer represents sports in the entire country of China."

The Chinese Nationalist group was told, however, that it may apply for readmission at a later date as the representative of "Taiwan" (Formosa).

The IOC thus bowed to Russian pressure as to which of the two groups should be recognized as the representative of Chinese sports. Communist China's Olympic delegation had quit the IOC in a huff earlier this year because of the continued recognition of the Nationalist committee.

Yankees Are Shut Out By Wilhelm

Orioles Ace Cops Four-Hitter, 5-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm Thursday night extended his string of shutout innings against the New York Yankees to 21 with a 4-hitter as the Baltimore Orioles beat the last place world champions 5-0.

It was the seventh victory of the year for the unbeaten 35-year-old right-hander, who has the best won-lost record in the majors, and his eighth in a row. That streak, longest in the American League, began when Wilhelm ended a nine-game losing string by no-hitting the Yankees last Sept. 20.

The third-place Orioles, who have won 7 of 11 games with the Yankees this year, put this one away with 2 runs in the first inning against Ralph Terry, who then faced only 15 men until he was touched for a run in the seventh. Gene Woodling closed the Birds' scoring with a 2-run homer, his third, in the eighth inning against reliever Bobby Shantz.

Red Sox Beat Washington, 3-1

WASHINGTON (AP) — A home run by Vic Wertz in the eighth inning after a 2-out error by Reno Bertoia Thursday night gave the Boston Red Sox a 3-1 victory over Washington as Frank Sullivan pitched a 2-hitter.

Every run in the game was unearned as Washington's Pedro Ramos got the worst of it in a brilliant pitching duel. In his 8 innings, Ramos yielded only 4 hits and walked 2.

In the eighth, Ramos easily disposed of the first two batters. Then second baseman Bertoia let Ted William's soft grounder bounce away. At this point, the left-handed swinging Wertz lined his third homer of the season into the left field bleachers.

Pittsburgh Sends Gross To Columbus On 24-Hour Option

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Lefthander Don Gross, who did yeoman duty as a relief pitcher in Pittsburgh's surge to second-place last season, was sent to the Pirates' Columbus, Ohio, farm club Thursday on 24-hour option.

Gross' spot on the Pirate roster will be filled by Alvin Jackson, also a left hander, who has been called up from Columbus' International League entry.

Gross suffered an injury to the shoulder of his pitching arm in spring training and the ailment is just beginning to respond to treatment, a club spokesman said. It was felt his recovery would be speeded by regular work. He was acquired from Cincinnati at the end of the 1957 season in a straight player exchange for pitcher Bob Purkey.

Jackson had a 6-1 record this year at Columbus and two of his victories were shutouts.

Athletics Trim Cleveland, 7-2

Daley Cuts Tribe's Margin To Half Game

CLEVELAND (AP)—Bill Tuttle smacked 4 hits — including a 2-run homer — to lead the Kansas City Athletics to a 7-2 victory over the league-leading Cleveland Indians Thursday night. It cut the Tribe's margin to a half-game over the runnerup Chicago White Sox, idled by rain.

Southpaw Bud Daley went the route for the Athletics to even his record at 3-3. He permitted 10 hits, but scattered them well. He proved tough at the plate, too, getting two singles — including one that drove in a pair of runs in the second inning. He also got credit for another RBI when he was hit by a pitched ball with the bases loaded in the ninth inning.

Tuttle drove in three runs.

Cumberland Schools Announce 1959 Grid Schedules

15 Contests Are Slated At Stadium

LaSalle And Fort Hill To Launch Season Sept. 11

Cumberland high school football coaches met last night and agreed on the dates for 15 contests to be staged at Fort Hill Stadium during the 1959 season.

William P. Hahn, Fort Hill; Edward J. Schwarz, Allegany and Don Harden, of LaSalle, were the mentors in attendance at the annual session held to avoid a conflict of dates in home games.

LaSalle and Fort Hill will have the honor of clashing in the first game of the season at the stadium for the fourth straight year. They are slated to kick off the lid Friday, September 11.

Trojans Replace Delone

Brother Thomas, athletic director of LaSalle, announced that the Explorers will play 10 games and there is only one change from last year. That's the replacing of Delone Catholic, McSherrystown, Pa., with St. Francis High School, of Morgantown, W. Va., Sept. 18. LaSalle's last engagement with St. Francis was in 1955 when the Trojans won, 19-14.

Yankees Are Shut Out By Wilhelm

Orioles Ace Cops Four-Hitter, 5-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm Thursday night extended his string of shutout innings against the New York Yankees to 21 with a 4-hitter as the Baltimore Orioles beat the last place world champions 5-0.

It was the seventh victory of the year for the unbeaten 35-year-old right-hander, who has the best won-lost record in the majors, and his eighth in a row. That streak, longest in the American League, began when Wilhelm ended a nine-game losing string by no-hitting the Yankees last Sept. 20.

The third-place Orioles, who have won 7 of 11 games with the Yankees this year, put this one away with 2 runs in the first inning against Ralph Terry, who then faced only 15 men until he was touched for a run in the seventh. Gene Woodling closed the Birds' scoring with a 2-run homer, his third, in the eighth inning against reliever Bobby Shantz.

Red Sox Beat Washington, 3-1

WASHINGTON (AP) — A home run by Vic Wertz in the eighth inning after a 2-out error by Reno Bertoia Thursday night gave the Boston Red Sox a 3-1 victory over Washington as Frank Sullivan pitched a 2-hitter.

Every run in the game was unearned as Washington's Pedro Ramos got the worst of it in a brilliant pitching duel. In his 8 innings, Ramos yielded only 4 hits and walked 2.

In the eighth, Ramos easily disposed of the first two batters. Then second baseman Bertoia let Ted William's soft grounder bounce away. At this point, the left-handed swinging Wertz lined his third homer of the season into the left field bleachers.

Pittsburgh Sends Gross To Columbus On 24-Hour Option

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Lefthander Don Gross, who did yeoman duty as a relief pitcher in Pittsburgh's surge to second-place last season, was sent to the Pirates' Columbus, Ohio, farm club Thursday on 24-hour option.

Gross' spot on the Pirate roster will be filled by Alvin Jackson, also a left hander, who has been called up from Columbus' International League entry.

Gross suffered an injury to the shoulder of his pitching arm in spring training and the ailment is just beginning to respond to treatment, a club spokesman said. It was felt his recovery would be speeded by regular work. He was acquired from Cincinnati at the end of the 1957 season in a straight player exchange for pitcher Bob Purkey.

Jackson had a 6-1 record this year at Columbus and two of his victories were shutouts.

Athletics Trim Cleveland, 7-2

Daley Cuts Tribe's Margin To Half Game

CLEVELAND (AP)—Bill Tuttle smacked 4 hits — including a 2-run homer — to lead the Kansas City Athletics to a 7-2 victory over the league-leading Cleveland Indians Thursday night. It cut the Tribe's margin to a half-game over the runnerup Chicago White Sox, idled by rain.

Southpaw Bud Daley went the route for the Athletics to even his record at 3-3. He permitted 10 hits, but scattered them well. He proved tough at the plate, too, getting two singles — including one that drove in a pair of runs in the second inning. He also got credit for another RBI when he was hit by a pitched ball with the bases loaded in the ninth inning.

Tuttle drove in three runs.

Three U.S. Golfers Sweep Into British Semi-Finals

Hyndman, Beman, Magee Are Among Four Survivors

By STERLING SLAPPEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

SANDWICH, England (AP) — A pair of U.S. Walker Cup aces, Bill Hyndman III and Deane Beman, and a darkhorse New Englander, Lt. Bob Magee, Thursday swept into the semifinals of the British Amateur Golf Championship.

They were joined by Guy Wolstenholme, a 28-year-old English woolen mill executive who stood as the line barrier to the fifth all-American Brtish final since World War II.

Assured One Finalist

The United States was assured of at least one finalist. The first 36-hole semifinal sends Hyndman, 43, an insurance company owner from Abington, Pa., against Magee, Germany-based officer from Newton, Mass.

In the bottom half, Beman, 21-year-old University of Maryland junior from Silver Spring, Md., opposes Wolstenholme, winner of the English championship and a member of the British Walker Cup team.

Hyndman Thursday cut down tow formidable American rivals, bearing Sgt. Harold B. Ridgley of Roanoke, Va., 2 and 1, and 19-year-old Jackie Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, 4 and 3.

Beman eliminated Harry Bentley, a 52-year-old Britisher, 2 and 1, and David Blair of Scotland, 4 and 3.

Blair earlier in the day had upset the defending champion, Joe Carr of Ireland.

Magee, 28, a 9-year regular Army veteran, beat Norman Isow of England, 1 up, and upset Doug Sewell, member of the British Walker Cup team, by winning the first extra hole of an overtime match.

American Final In 1952

Wolstenholme defeated Bill Hill, 2 and 1, and Ian Caldwell, 3 and 2, in all-English duels.

The last all-American final in the British Amateur was in 1952 when Harvie Ward beat Frank Stranahan for the title.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — The University of South Carolina hired Michigan State assistant Robert L. Stevens as its new head basketball coach Thursday and he promised a "race horse, fast-breaking" brand of play.

Stevens, 34-year-old Michigan State graduate and assistant coach as the Big Ten school the past three seasons, succeeds Walt Hambrick, who gave up basketball duties at the Atlantic Coast Conference school to become a full-time physical education professor.

The victory was the fifth in a row for the Vets who lost their first two games of the season, one a 4-1 decision to the Caseys.

Glenn Kauffman went the route for the V.F.W. and chalked up his second victory of the season. He scattered eight hits, including a pair of singles by Norman Geatz and a two-base rap by Al Sheetz.

Jim Angellatta started on the mound for the Knights but gave way to Sheetz in the second frame when the Vets scored three runs. Angellatta was charged with the loss, his second against a single victory.

High School Race Could End In Tie

Indians To Host Valley; Fort Hill Battles Campers

Mt. Savage High School goes after its second championship in the Allegany County Baseball League today when it tackles Valley High of Lonaconing in the final game of the regular season at 4 p.m. at Mt. Savage.

Coach Joe Carter's Indians finished in a triple tie for first place with Fort Hill and Allegany last year, each team winning 11 games and losing three. This was the first time Mt. Savage finished on top in the league since it made its debut in 1953.

Four Ties In Six Years

The league race has ended in ties four times in the last six years and it could windup in a deadlock again if Valley whips Mt. Savage and Fort Hill dumps the Campers at Allegany today.

Valley and Mt. Savage will be tangling for the 12th time in baseball and the Knights lead in wins, 6 to 5. A victory for the Indians would knot the series at five wins each.

Mt. Savage holds a 6-5 decision over Valley and in that game Ron Cook decisioned Wayne Johnson. Cook (4-0) is expected to face George Lauder (3-2) today.

Sentinels Seek Sweep

Fort Hill battles the Campers in their series finale and the Sentinels will be seeking a sweep after having won the opener, 4-3. Johnny Price (4-0) is expected to pitch against Ronnie Evans (1-4) or Cliff Montgomery (1-4).

Fort Hill already has won the city championship with a 3-0 record. In addition to the win over Allegany, the Sentinels have swept their series with LaSalle, 6-5 and 16-4.

Other games on the final day of the season are LaSalle at Beall and Bruce at Flintstone.

The game at Flintstone is billed for 3:30 while all the others start at 4 o'clock.

East Bank Will Battle Weirton For State Title

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) — Favored East Bank and Weirton advanced into the finals of the West Virginia high school baseball tournament Thursday with wins over Philippi and Princeton.

The championship is scheduled Friday at City Park here at 1 p.m. e. s. t.

East Bank has a 23-1 mark and Weirton is 16-2. Princeton finished with a 10-4 record and Philippi 12-2.

Arcaro To Ride At Two Tracks On Same Day

CAMDEN, N.J. (UPI)—Jockey Eddie Arcaro will ride two major races Saturday at Belmont and Garden State, using a helicopter for transportation between the tracks.

He'll ride Claiborne Farm's Nadir in the $100,000 Metropolitan Mile at Belmont; and then fly to Garden State where he'll mount the same stable's Dunce in the $50,000 Jersey Stakes.

The first race will go at 4:16 p.m. and the second at 5:45 p.m. The helicopter trip is expected to take 70 minutes. He will land in the Garden State Park infield.

Garden State announced that although stewards at both tracks have given permission for Arcaro's shuttle between mounts, he will not be listed as the jockey at the New Jersey track.

An alternate boy, in silks, will be available at Garden State should there be any delay in Arcaro's arrival.

Milwaukee's Lead Cut To Two Games

By AL CLINE
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco continued its mastery over St. Louis Thursday, whipping the Cardinals 5-4 and moving within two games of National League leading Milwaukee.

Leon Wagner's triple in the eighth off reliever Lindy McDaniel was the key blow in the Giants' seventh victory in eight games against the Cardinals. Felipe Alou, who ran for Wagner, scored the winning run on Daryl Spencer's sacrifice fly.

McDaniel gave only one other hit in the 3 2-3 innings he worked but took his sixth loss against three victories.

Stu Miller, who relieved starter Sam Jones to open the fifth inning, received credit for his third triumph without defeat. But he needed help in the ninth from lefty Mike McCormick. Mike got pinch-hitter Chuck Essegian to fly out and Ray Jablonski hit into a force play after Miller walked Ken Boyer with one out.

Milwaukee, Yankee Home Run Hitters To Match Muscles

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Braves' Hank Aaron, Eddie Mathews and Joe Adcock will match their home run muscles against the Yankees' Mickey Mantle, Hank Bauer and Bill Skowron prior to a charity game between the two clubs here June 29.

Each of the sluggers will be allowed to hit five fair balls and the player with the most home runs will be the winner. In case of a tie, each will hit another three balls.

Of the six stars, Mantle has hit the most home runs in one season, 52. Mathews has the highest home run total for time in the majors among the six, 268 to date. Adcock has the best record of homers for one game among the six, four in a single contest.

Mathews has 15 homers and Aaron 13 homers to date to take the top two spots respectively among the National League's sluggers. None of the Yankee hitters are among the American League's top six home run men now.

Three U.S. Golfers Sweep Into British Semi-Finals

Hyndman, Beman, Magee Are Among Four Survivors

By STERLING SLAPPEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

SANDWICH, England (AP) — A pair of U.S. Walker Cup aces, Bill Hyndman III and Deane Beman, and a darkhorse New Englander, Lt. Bob Magee, Thursday swept into the semifinals of the British Amateur Golf Championship.

They were joined by Guy Wolstenholme, a 28-year-old English woolen mill executive who stood as the line barrier to the fifth all-American Brtish final since World War II.

Assured One Finalist

The United States was assured of at least one finalist. The first 36-hole semifinal sends Hyndman, 43, an insurance company owner from Abington, Pa., against Magee, Germany-based officer from Newton, Mass.

In the bottom half, Beman, 21-year-old University of Maryland junior from Silver Spring, Md., opposes Wolstenholme, winner of the English championship and a member of the British Walker Cup team.

Hyndman Thursday cut down tow formidable American rivals, bearing Sgt. Harold B. Ridgley of Roanoke, Va., 2 and 1, and 19-year-old Jackie Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, 4 and 3.

Beman eliminated Harry Bentley, a 52-year-old Britisher, 2 and 1, and David Blair of Scotland, 4 and 3.

Blair earlier in the day had upset the defending champion, Joe Carr of Ireland.

Magee, 28, a 9-year regular Army veteran, beat Norman Isow of England, 1 up, and upset Doug Sewell, member of the British Walker Cup team, by winning the first extra hole of an overtime match.

American Final In 1952

Wolstenholme defeated Bill Hill, 2 and 1, and Ian Caldwell, 3 and 2, in all-English duels.

The last all-American final in the British Amateur was in 1952 when Harvie Ward beat Frank Stranahan for the title.

High School Race Could End In Tie

Indians To Host Valley; Fort Hill Battles Campers

Mt. Savage High School goes after its second championship in the Allegany County Baseball League today when it tackles Valley High of Lonaconing in the final game of the regular season at 4 p.m. at Mt. Savage.

Coach Joe Carter's Indians finished in a triple tie for first place with Fort Hill and Allegany last year, each team winning 11 games and losing three. This was the first time Mt. Savage finished on top in the league since it made its debut in 1953.

Four Ties In Six Years

The league race has ended in ties four times in the last six years and it could windup in a deadlock again if Valley whips Mt. Savage and Fort Hill dumps the Campers at Allegany today.

Valley and Mt. Savage will be tangling for the 12th time in baseball and the Knights lead in wins, 6 to 5. A victory for the Indians would knot the series at five wins each.

Mt. Savage holds a 6-5 decision over Valley and in that game Ron Cook decisioned Wayne Johnson. Cook (4-0) is expected to face George Lauder (3-2) today.

Sentinels Seek Sweep

Fort Hill battles the Campers in their series finale and the Sentinels will be seeking a sweep after having won the opener, 4-3. Johnny Price (4-0) is expected to pitch against Ronnie Evans (1-4) or Cliff Montgomery (1-4).

Fort Hill already has won the city championship with a 3-0 record. In addition to the win over Allegany, the Sentinels have swept their series with LaSalle, 6-5 and 16-4.

Other games on the final day of the season are LaSalle at Beall and Bruce at Flintstone.

The game at Flintstone is billed for 3:30 while all the others start at 4 o'clock.

East Bank has a 23-1 mark and Weirton is 16-2. Princeton finished with a 10-4 record and Philippi 12-2.

Arcaro To Ride At Two Tracks On Same Day

CAMDEN, N.J. (UPI)—Jockey Eddie Arcaro will ride two major races Saturday at Belmont and Garden State, using a helicopter for transportation between the tracks.

He'll ride Claiborne Farm's Nadir in the $100,000 Metropolitan Mile at Belmont; and then fly to Garden State where he'll mount the same stable's Dunce in the $50,000 Jersey Stakes.

The first race will go at 4:16 p.m. and the second at 5:45 p.m. The helicopter trip is expected to take 70 minutes. He will land in the Garden State Park infield.

An alternate boy, in silks, will be available at Garden State should there be any delay in Arcaro's arrival.

Milwaukee's Lead Cut To Two Games

By AL CLINE
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco continued its mastery over St. Louis Thursday, whipping the Cardinals 5-4 and moving within two games of National League leading Milwaukee.

Leon Wagner's triple in the eighth off reliever Lindy McDaniel was the key blow in the Giants' seventh victory in eight games against the Cardinals. Felipe Alou, who ran for Wagner, scored the winning run on Daryl Spencer's sacrifice fly.

McDaniel gave only one other hit in the 3 2-3 innings he worked but took his sixth loss against three victories.

Stu Miller, who relieved starter Sam Jones to open the fifth inning, received credit for his third triumph without defeat. But he needed help in the ninth from lefty Mike McCormick. Mike got pinch-hitter Chuck Essegian to fly out and Ray Jablonski hit into a force play after Miller walked Ken Boyer with one out.

Bucco Hurler Aided By Four Double Plays

Tosses 4-Hitter, Pittsburgh Scores All Runs Off Jay

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Pittsburgh's Bob Friend, who predicted before the game that he was "coming out of it," won his first game of the season Thursday with a four-hit, 3-0, shutout over the Milwaukee Braves. He had lost his first seven decisions of the season.

Friend, a 20-game winner in 1958, doled out singles in four different innings and four double plays behind him wiped out runners in the second through fifth frames.

Threaten In Ninth

The Braves didn't get a runner past second until the ninth when Hank Aaron, who had gone hitless in 14 trips, singled after two were out to send Eddie Mathews to third. But Wes Covington grounded out to end the game.

The Pirates, blanked the first four innings by Braves' starter Joey Jay, scored all their runs in the fifth. Singles by Don Hoak and Dick Groat, and a walk to Joe Christopher, loaded the bases with two out.

Bill Virdon's ground out scored the first run and Dan Kravitz batted home the other two with a looping single over short.

Friend said before the game he felt he was out of his slump on the basis of his last performance during a double-header with Cincinnati last week end.

"I've never felt better," he said, but explained that his seven consecutive losses were partially due to mistakes with men on base.

Jay Loses Third

Jay lasted six innings before he was lifted for a pinch hitter as the Braves tried to rally in the sixth. It was Jay's third loss against two wins. Bob Rush finished up with only one Pirate hit in the last three innings.

It was the Pirates' only victory in a three-game series.

Bucco Hurler Aided By Four Double Plays

Tosses 4-Hitter, Pittsburgh Scores All Runs Off Jay

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Pittsburgh's Bob Friend, who predicted before the game that he was "coming out of it," won his first game of the season Thursday with a four-hit, 3-0, shutout over the Milwaukee Braves. He had lost his first seven decisions of the season.

Friend, a 20-game winner in 1958, doled out singles in four different innings and four double plays behind him wiped out runners in the second through fifth frames.

Threaten In Ninth

The Braves didn't get a runner past second until the ninth when Hank Aaron, who had gone hitless in 14 trips, singled after two were out to send Eddie Mathews to third. But Wes Covington grounded out to end the game.

The Pirates, blanked the first four innings by Braves' starter Joey Jay, scored all their runs in the fifth. Singles by Don Hoak and Dick Groat, and a walk to Joe Christopher, loaded the bases with two out.

Bill Virdon's ground out scored the first run and Dan Kravitz batted home the other two with a looping single over short.

Friend said before the game he felt he was out of his slump on the basis of his last performance during a double-header with Cincinnati last week end.

"I've never felt better," he said, but explained that his seven consecutive losses were partially due to mistakes with men on base.

Jay Loses Third

Jay lasted six innings before he was lifted for a pinch hitter as the Braves tried to rally in the sixth. It was Jay's third loss against two wins. Bob Rush finished up with only one Pirate hit in the last three innings.

It was the Pirates' only victory in a three-game series.

Sign Agreement

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday signed a mutual economic cooperation agreement with Afghanistan and praised that Asian nation for its "wise policy of neutrality." The official Tass news agency said that Afghan Ambassador Abdul Hakin Shalalami signed the pact for his country.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—The title "Wake Me When It's Over", the first picture Mervyn Leroy will make for his own company for 20th, isn't what it sounds like. Mervyn tells me it's a story of the Air Force, a comedy, and a combination of "No Time for Sergeants" and "Mr. Roberts". Richard Breen is writing the adaptation, and Buddy Adler, who holds out the welcoming hand to Mervyn when he moves in next week, has ok'd the story.

"I'm going east to see my daughter, Linda, graduate from Smith College on June 6," said Mervyn. "Then I'll take a vacation. The picture will take a lot of preparation, but I expect to start filming in September."

Mervyn, as one of our top directors, won't have any trouble getting a good cast.

The first scenes in Elizabeth Taylor's picture, "Suddenly Last Summer," were shot Monday between Monty Clift and Albert Dekker. Katharine Hepburn visited the studio but she doesn't work for three weeks.

Elizabeth and Eddie Fisher came in from Cannes and she will do her first scene next week. As you can guess, they were met by every reporter in London. But what more can they say or print that hasn't already been said.

And speaking of Eddie, the ex-Mrs. Fisher, Debbie Reynolds, was just wonderful on "What's My Line" last Sunday. She sounded more like Eva Gabor, with whom she is houseguesting, than Eva herself.

Judy Garland, sounding like I haven't heard her since she was 16—so happy, telephoned from Beverly Hills of all places. I thought she was in Chicago, but she said she had a few days off before she opens there at the Opera House June 1, so she came home to see the children and to rest.

"Appearing at the Metropolitan Opera in New York was the most thrilling experience in my entire life," said Judy. I asked her how she felt, and she said she has never felt better.

There has been talk of a TV spectacular being made of "Judy at the Opera," but she told me she hadn't heard anything about it. However, she thought it would be a good idea.

Edouard L. Cournand has the real Frenchman's flair for choosing the proper menu. The dinner he gave honoring Madame Marie-Louise Bousquet, Paris editor of Harper's Bazaar, at Romanoff's, was a poem destined to pile up the calories. The Harper's Bazaar reception at the Bel Air Hotel was such a success that it was 10 o'clock when we sat down to dinner, with such hungry people as Jack Benny, George Burns, Freddie de Cordova, Robert McLeod, Harper's publisher, James and Pamela Mason, Jimmy McHugh, Lee Anderson, Cesar Romero, Mrs. Art Linkletter, Mary and Bob Cummings and Faith Domergue.

Sign Agreement

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday signed a mutual economic cooperation agreement with Afghanistan and praised that Asian nation for its "wise policy of neutrality." The official Tass news agency said that Afghan Ambassador Abdul Hakin Shahalami signed the pact for his country.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—The title "Wake Me When It's Over", the first picture Mervyn Leroy will make for his own company for 20th, isn't what it sounds like. Mervyn tells me it's a story of the Air Force, a comedy, and a combination of "No Time for Sergeants" and "Mr. Roberts". Richard Breen is writing the adaptation, and Buddy Adler, who holds out the welcoming hand to Mervyn when he moves in next week, has ok'd the story.

"I'm going east to see my daughter, Linda, graduate from Smith College on June 6," said Mervyn. "Then I'll take a vacation. The picture will take a lot of preparation, but I expect to start filming in September."

Mervyn, as one of our top directors, won't have any trouble getting a good cast.

The first scenes in Elizabeth Taylor's picture, "Suddenly Last Summer," were shot Monday between Monty Clift and Albert Dekker. Katharine Hepburn visited the studio but she doesn't work for three weeks.

Elizabeth and Eddie Fisher came in from Cannes and she will do her first scene next week. As you can guess, they were met by every reporter in London. But what more can they say or print that hasn't already been said.

And speaking of Eddie, the ex-Mrs. Fisher, Debbie Reynolds, was just wonderful on "What's My Line" last Sunday. She sounded more like Eva Gabor, with whom she is houseguesting, than Eva herself.

Judy Garland, sounding like I haven't heard her since she was 16—so happy, telephoned from Beverly Hills of all places. I thought she was in Chicago, but she said she had a few days off before she opens there at the Opera House June 1, so she came home to see the children and to rest.

"Appearing at the Metropolitan Opera in New York was the most thrilling experience in my entire life," said Judy. I asked her how she felt, and she said she has never felt better.

There has been talk of a TV spectacular being made of "Judy at the Opera," but she told me she hadn't heard anything about it. However, she thought it would be a good idea.

Edouard L. Cournand has the real Frenchman's flair for choosing the proper menu. The dinner he gave honoring Madame Marie-Louise Bousquet, Paris editor of Harper's Bazaar, at Romanoff's, was a poem destined to pile up the calories. The Harper's Bazaar reception at the Bel Air Hotel was such a success that it was 10 o'clock when we sat down to dinner, with such hungry people as Jack Benny, George Burns, Freddie de Cordova, Robert McLeod, Harper's publisher, James and Pamela Mason, Jimmy McHugh, Lee Anderson, Cesar Romero, Mrs. Art Linkletter, Mary and Bob Cummings and Faith Domergue.

me that Madame Bousquet's Paris salon is the last of the famous salons and that everyone vies for an invitation to her Thursdays. She was one of Colette's closet friends and the two were called the wittiest women in Paris.

The kids certainly go for Frankie Avalon and Warners, with that in mind, have offered him a couple of scripts before he so much as finished "Guns of the Timberland." But Frankie says they are period stories and he wants something that will show of his fancy sweaters and other sharp outfits which his fans are used to seeing on him.

He's ready to honor the option Warners has with him, however, but he wants them to come up with a different type of story after he completes his nightclub tour. Lou Spencer is writing him a new act, and Frankie is booked solidly until November.

After a year on the wagon and dieting like crazy, Sonny Tufts is down to a fit 190 pounds, looks fit as a fiddle and comes up as the star of a new TV series, "The Bandidos." Sonny wanted to come over to the house for me to see him in person and what a "new man" he has become, but I told him I'd take his word for it.

The TV series he is to do is a Ronica Production which comes under the head of a Mexican Western. It's set in 1863 involving a strapping Texan who fights on the side of Juarez during that late unpleasantness. Shooting begins on Mexico in July—and I say good for Sonny for the effort he's made to come back.

Hollywood

me that Madame Bousquet's Paris salon is the last of the famous salons and that everyone vies for an invitation to her Thursdays. She was one of Colette's closet friends and the two were called the wittiest women in Paris.

The kids certainly go for Frankie Avalon and Warners, with that in mind, have offered him a couple of scripts before he so much as finished "Guns of the Timberland." But Frankie says they are period stories and he wants something that will show of his fancy sweaters and other sharp outfits which his fans are used to seeing on him.

He's ready to honor the option Warners has with him, however, but he wants them to come up with a different type of story after he completes his nightclub tour. Lou Spencer is writing him a new act, and Frankie is booked solidly until November.

After a year on the wagon and dieting like crazy, Sonny Tufts is down to a fit 190 pounds, looks fit as a fiddle and comes up as the star of a new TV series, "The Bandidos." Sonny wanted to come over to the house for me to see him in person and what a "new man" he has become, but I told him I'd take his word for it.

The TV series he is to do is a Ronica Production which comes under the head of a Mexican Western. It's set in 1863 involving a strapping Texan who fights on the side of Juarez during that late unpleasantness. Shooting begins on Mexico in July—and I say good for Sonny for the effort he's made to come back.

Industrial Stocks Climb To Another Record High

NEW YORK (UPI)—Industrial stocks closed in new record territory despite the restraining influence of an approaching holiday and an obvious lack of interest in the rail and utility groups.

Industrials featured chemical and electronics issues and numerous individual specialties such as American Machine & Foundry which moved up over 3 on a record first quarter report and optimistic foecast and American Home Products which rose 2 points on good dividend news.

Volume continued relatively light, with turnover totaling 2,970,000 shares, compared with 2,940,000 Wednesday.

The approaching Memorial holiday served as somewhat of a dampener since many traders will take off for an unofficial three-day vacation even though the exchange itself will not close on Friday as is usually the case when a major holiday falls on a Saturday.

Coming after the market close was the long anticipated Federal Reserve Board increase in the discount rate from 3 to 3½ per cent at reserve banks in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Dallas. It is felt this move at most would have a temporary market effect since it has been expected and largely discounted.

Gains in the chemicals were important in lifting the industrial average to a new record high.

Play Safe While You Drive!

Keep alert—chew gum

Avoid traffic jitters and driving drowsiness. Chew gum while you're behind the wheel. Chewing helps relieve strain and tension—helps keep you feeling fresh and alert for safer driving.

Chew any brand of gum you like but chew while you drive. Naturally, we recommend refreshing, delicious Wrigley's Spearmint Gum—for lively, satisfying flavor and real chewing enjoyment.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Declarer went set in today's hand because fear of a possible ruff induced him to draw the trumps prematurely.

The four heart contract was reached in easy stages and West opened the jack of spades. Declarer permitted this to ride around to East's king and the ten of clubs came back. Suspecting that it was a singleton, South won the trick with the king and hastened to extract two rounds of trumps. He then crossed to dummy with the ace of spades and led a club. Naturally East refused to ruff a losing card and South won the ace. On the queen of spades a club was discarded out of dummy and declarer ruffed a club with the eight of hearts. Had East overruffed, declarer's problem would have vanished, for dummy would retain a trump to handle South's remaining club.

However, East refused the trick, observing that declarer was suffering from communication troubles. He saw that South could not reach his hand in a hurry; so he bided his time. Declarer played the ace and another diamond. East rose with the queen, played the high trump and left declarer with a club which he had to concede to West for the setting trick.

Undue anxiety to draw trumps created the communication problem which sent declarer down to defeat. Had he drawn one less round of trumps he would at the psychological moment have retained a heart with which to return to his hand. After drawing one trump, South crosses to dummy's ace of spades as before, leads a club, which East must duck. South wins, cashes the high spade and ruffs a club in dummy, which East ducks. Now declarer returns to his hand with a trump and is able to ruff his remaining club.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grains were mixed Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the close, wheat was off ⅛ to up ⅜; corn off ½ to ¾; oats off ½ to ⅝; new oats off ⅝ to ⅞; rye unchanged to up ⅝; soybeans off ⅛ to 1⅛.

Wheat prices settled back to near Wednesday's close after a firm start. The brief advance was caused by mill purchases, possibly in anticipation of government awards.

Corn lost about a cent from the previous close. Local traders were active sellers. There was considerable early trade in July at $1.25, with stop loss selling below that price. Crop and weather reports were good. Receipts were larger, and the spot basis was steady.

Oat prices were heavier on continued liquidation and stop loss selling. Rye was mixed.

Soybeans were inactive, and prices were off more than a cent. Some commission houses sold July, and an elevator broker sold November. Further selling followed the action of other grains.

Export purchases in wheat were reported by Yugoslavia. The continent was said to have bought corn, and Israel bought soybeans on a barter basis.

Outside markets were mostly easier. The range:

Industrial Stocks Climb To Another Record High

NEW YORK (UPI)—Industrial stocks closed in new record territory despite the restraining influence of an approaching holiday and an obvious lack of interest in the rail and utility groups.

Industrials featured chemical and electronics issues and numerous individual specialties such as American Machine & Foundry which moved up over 3 on a record first quarter report and optimistic foecast and American Home Products which rose 2 points on good dividend news.

Volume continued relatively light, with turnover totaling 2,970,000 shares, compared with 2,940,000 Wednesday.

The approaching Memorial holiday served as somewhat of a dampener since many traders will take off for an unofficial three-day vacation even though the exchange itself will not close on Friday as is usually the case when a major holiday falls on a Saturday.

Coming after the market close was the long anticipated Federal Reserve Board increase in the discount rate from 3 to 3½ per cent at reserve banks in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Dallas. It is felt this move at most would have a temporary market effect since it has been expected and largely discounted.

Gains in the chemicals were important in lifting the industrial average to a new record high.

Declarer went set in today's hand because fear of a possible ruff induced him to draw the trumps prematurely.

The four heart contract was reached in easy stages and West opened the jack of spades. Declarer permitted this to ride around to East's king and the ten of clubs came back. Suspecting that it was a singleton, South won the trick with the king and hastened to extract two rounds of trumps. He then crossed to dummy with the ace of spades and led a club. Naturally East refused to ruff a losing card and South won the ace. On the queen of spades a club was discarded out of dummy and declarer ruffed a club with the eight of hearts. Had East overruffed, declarer's problem would have vanished, for dummy would retain a trump to handle South's remaining club.

However, East refused the trick, observing that declarer was suffering from communication troubles. He saw that South could not reach his hand in a hurry; so he bided his time. Declarer played the ace and another diamond. East rose with the queen, played the high trump and left declarer with a club which he had to concede to West for the setting trick.

Undue anxiety to draw trumps created the communication problem which sent declarer down to defeat. Had he drawn one less round of trumps he would at the psychological moment have retained a heart with which to return to his hand. After drawing one trump, South crosses to dummy's ace of spades as before, leads a club, which East must duck, South wins, cashes the high spade and ruffs a club in dummy, which East ducks. Now declarer returns to his hand with a trump and is able to ruff his remaining club.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grains were mixed Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the close, wheat was off ⅛ to up ⅜; corn off ½ to ¾; oats off ½ to ⅝; new oats off ⅝ to ⅞; rye unchanged to up ⅝; soybeans off ⅛ to 1⅛.

Wheat prices settled back to near Wednesday's close after a firm start. The brief advance was caused by mill purchases, possibly in anticipation of government awards.

Corn lost about a cent from the previous close. Local traders were active sellers. There was considerable early trade in July at $1.25, with stop loss selling below that price. Crop and weather reports were good. Receipts were larger, and the spot basis was steady.

Oat prices were heavier on continued liquidation and stop loss selling. Rye was mixed.

Soybeans were inactive, and prices were off more than a cent. Some commission houses sold July, and an elevator broker sold November. Further selling followed the action of other grains.

Export purchases in wheat were reported by Yugoslavia. The continent was said to have bought corn, and Israel bought soybeans on a charter basis.

Outside markets were mostly easier. The range:

Police Lift 4-6 P.M. Ban On Parking

Plan Is Extended To Market Street

Parking restrictions on North Centre and North Mechanic Streets during afternoon rush hours will be lifted tomorrow, according to Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming.

The 4-6 parking ban, he said, will be removed along the entire route from Baltimore Street to Market Street.

Commissioner Fleming said the parking restriction was badly needed when it was imposed during the height of the flood control work.

The need is past, he said, if merchants and shoppers who use the streets cooperate with city officials.

Test Is Successful

Early in March the Police Department eased the ban by allowing normal 4-6 p.m. parking as far as Frederick Street.

This test period was conducted after double-headed parking meters were installed. Under the plan for this type of meters, red lines are provided between meters to allow cars to scoot in and out of parking spaces at near normal speeds.

Mr. Fleming said the city will either install additional twin-meters from Frederick to Market Street or remove some existing meters and paint red lines to make it easier for shoppers to get in and out of the parking spaces.

The latter plan would allow the city to get along with existing meters with the loss of a few parking spaces.

To Enforce Rules

Commissioner Fleming said the Police Department plans to patrol the area continuously to make sure that traffic is kept moving.

He warned that $5 fines are imposed for parking on red lines opposite the parking areas, or on the red lines placed between meters to expedite parking.

Mr. Fleming said he has discussed the lifting of the ban with Police Chief B. F. Gaffney and that both are agreed strict enforcement will be needed.

Merchants, he said, will be asked to cooperate by urging their customers to obey the parking regulations.

Mr. Fleming said all shoppers should be able to stop, make purchases and move on, leaving space for other shoppers, if the rules are obeyed.

Merchants along the first block report afternoon business has improved since the new meters were installed and the 4-6 p.m. ban lifted.

John Ternent, Lonaconing, another employe at the garage, was treated at the same hospital for minor burns he sustained while trying to pull the burning clothing off Flanagan.

Central Fire Company responded to the alarm shortly after noon but several other employes had used an extinguisher to put out the fire by the time the firemen arrived.

Oft-Jailed Man Loses Another Freedom Bid

Judge Refuses Habeas Corpus

Andrew Louis Robinson, who has spent 31 of his 48 years in confinement, lost another bid for freedom this week when Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris in Allegany County Circuit Court rejected his application for a writ of habeas corpus.

Robinson, a former part-time garbage collector, was sentenced to three years in the Maryland Penitentiary April 20 by Judge Harris on a charge of breaking into Geatz's Restaurant on Paca Street January 15 and stealing $129.56 worth of whisky and a $50 shotgun.

In his brief opinion denying Robinson's petition, Judge Harris rejected all three of the prisoner's contentions.

The first was that he was arrested January 26 and was held in jail without a hearing on bond being set until February 5. His second argument was that the state used witnesses when his case was presented to the grand jury for indictment who were not in court on the day of the trial. Finally, he commented that the person or persons who had possession of the whisky he stole were not prosecuted.

Judge Harris says that the contention that a trial has been improperly delayed is not grounds for habeas corpus. Similarly, the point about the missing witness cannot be made on habeas corpus. Nor does the argument about those in possession of the stolen whisky have any bearing on a habeas corpus action, he ruled.

Robinson was the only person indicted by the April grand jury in Circuit Court here.

Pa. Police Probe Thefts From 6 Schools

Pennsylvania State Police are investigating a series of thefts which hit six schools in Somerset County last week.

The State Police detachment at Somerset said last night no arrests have been made in the thefts from Berlin-Brothersvalley High School, Stoystown and Kantner elementary schools, Shade-Central City High School in Cairnbrook, Poplar Street Elementary School in Central City, and Garrett Elementary School.

Police said the schools were broken into during the first four days of last week.

At Berlin, the main office was ransacked and an undetermined amount of cash was taken from the home economics room.

A small amount of cash was taken from the Kantner building, and some change was taken from an ice cream machine and soft drink machine which were forced open in the Cairnbrook school.

Several desks were ransacked at the school in Central City, but nothing was missing, police said. A door was forced open at the Garrett school and desks were ransacked, but no money was taken.

State Police said that earlier in May, schools at Harnedsville, Kingwood and Rockwood also were burglarized.

Blue Cross Seeks 24% Rate Hike

Would Issue New Contracts

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland Blue Cross applied Thursday for a 24.5 per cent increase in its rates, effective Oct. 1. It said it already has lost a million dollars during the first four months of this year.

The rate change would affect about 80 per cent of the plan's 1,033,000 subscribers, if approved by the State Insurance Department. The remaining 20 per cent are covered by special contracts and would not be affected.

The Blue Cross also asked authority to:

1. Issue a new, deductible-type contract, offered to all subscribers on an individual choice basis at rates lower than those on the standard contract.

2. Offer optional benefits to both the standard contract and the proposed deductible-type contract which would provide broader maternity benefits and higher private room allowances.

3. Permit enrolling persons over 65.

Increased Last Fall

Blue Cross was granted a 13.9 per cent rate increase last October. The rate granted was three-fifths of the hike asked by Blue Cross, and the approval was made a year after the application.

R. H. Dabney, the organization's executive director, said "The present standard contract rates fall far short of covering even the bare cost of subscribers' benefits.

"Our total income from this contract in the first four months of 1959 was $6,800,000, but benefits for subscribers covered by that contract cost $7,500,000. This is completely exclusive of administrative costs, which are running slightly less than five per cent of income."

He said that Blue Cross had withdrawn nearly three million dollars from its reserves — more than 50 per cent.

"The rates we are proposing are essential if Blue Cross is to continue to serve its subscribers on a sound financial basis," he said.

Blue Cross said its deductible-type contract was designed to meet the demand of subscribers willing to assume part of the cost of a hospital stay in exchange for a relatively lower charge.

$75 Deductible

The benefits would be the same as those under the standard contract, except that the subscriber would pay directly, on each admission, a deductible sum of $25, or $5 for each day spent in the hospital, whichever is more, up to a maximum of $75.

Under the deductible-type contract, individual policies in the group policy would be $2.70 a month and family policies would be $6.30. In the non-group policies, individuals would pay $3.10 and families $6.90.

Blue Cross asked to change its maternity clauses under the family membership standard contract plan to increase to $100 the maternity benefits for an added monthly cost of 20 cents. Also, it would like to increase the benefit to 10 days' full coverage in maternity cases for an extra 44 cents a month for standard contract subscribers and 30 cents a month under the deductible-type contracts.

Police Lift 4-6 P.M. Ban On Parking

Plan Is Extended To Market Street

Parking restrictions on North Centre and North Mechanic Streets during afternoon rush hours will be lifted tomorrow, according to Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming.

The 4-6 parking ban, he said, will be removed along the entire route from Baltimore Street to Market Street.

Commissioner Fleming said the parking restriction was badly needed when it was imposed during the height of the flood control work.

The need is past, he said, if merchants and shoppers who use the streets cooperate with city officials.

Test Is Successful

Early in March the Police Department eased the ban by allowing normal 4-6 p.m. parking as far as Frederick Street.

This test period was conducted after double-headed parking meters were installed. Under the plan for this type of meters, red lines are provided between meters to allow cars to scoot in and out of parking spaces at near normal speeds.

Mr. Fleming said the city will either install additional twin-meters from Frederick to Market Street or remove some existing meters and paint red lines to make it easier for shoppers to get in and out of the parking spaces.

The latter plan would allow the city to get along with existing meters with the loss of a few parking spaces.

To Enforce Rules

Commissioner Fleming said the Police Department plans to patrol the area continuously to make sure that traffic is kept moving.

He warned that $5 fines are imposed for parking on red lines opposite the parking areas, or on the red lines placed between meters to expedite parking.

Mr. Fleming said he has discussed the lifting of the ban with Police Chief B. F. Gaffney and that both are agreed strict enforcement will be needed.

Merchants, he said, will be asked to cooperate by urging their customers to obey the parking regulations.

Mr. Fleming said all shoppers should be able to stop, make purchases and move on, leaving space for other shoppers, if the rules are obeyed.

Merchants along the first block report afternoon business has improved since the new meters were installed and the 4-6 p.m. ban lifted.

Oft-Jailed Man Loses Another Freedom Bid

Judge Refuses Habeas Corpus

Andrew Louis Robinson, who has spent 31 of his 48 years in confinement, lost another bid for freedom this week when Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris in Allegany County Circuit Court rejected his application for a writ of habeas corpus.

Robinson, a former part-time garbage collector, was sentenced to three years in the Maryland Penitentiary April 20 by Judge Harris on a charge of breaking into Geatz's Restaurant on Paca Street January 15 and stealing $129.56 worth of whisky and a $50 shotgun.

In his brief opinion denying Robinson's petition, Judge Harris rejected all three of the prisoner's contentions.

The first was that he was arrested January 26 and was held in jail without a hearing on bond being set until February 5. His second argument was that the state used witnesses when his case was presented to the grand jury for indictment who were not in court on the day of the trial. Finally, he commented that the person or persons who had possession of the whisky he stole were not prosecuted.

Judge Harris says that the contention that a trial has been improperly delayed is not grounds for habeas corpus. Similarly, the point about the missing witness cannot be made on habeas corpus. Nor does the argument about those in possession of the stolen whisky have any bearing on a habeas corpus action, he ruled.

Robinson was the only person indicted by the April grand jury in Circuit Court here.

Pa. Police Probe Thefts From 6 Schools

Pennsylvania State Police are investigating a series of thefts which hit six schools in Somerset County last week.

The State Police detachment at Somerset said last night no arrests have been made in the thefts from Berlin-Brothersvalley High School, Stoystown and Kantner elementary schools, Shade-Central City High School in Cairnbrook, Poplar Street Elementary School in Central City, and Garrett Elementary School.

Police said the schools were broken into during the first four days of last week.

At Berlin, the main office was ransacked and an undetermined amount of cash was taken from the home economics room.

A small amount of cash was taken from the Kantner building, and some change was taken from an ice cream machine and soft drink machine which were forced open in the Cairnbrook school.

Several desks were ransacked at the school in Central City, but nothing was missing, police said. A door was forced open at the Garrett school and desks were ransacked, but no money was taken.

State Police said that earlier in May, schools at Harnedsville, Kingwood and Rockwood also were burglarized.

Blue Cross Seeks 24% Rate Hike

Would Issue New Contracts

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland Blue Cross applied Thursday for a 24.5 per cent increase in its rates, effective Oct. 1. It said it already has lost a million dollars during the first four months of this year.

The rate change would affect about 80 per cent of the plan's 1,033,000 subscribers, if approved by the State Insurance Department. The remaining 20 per cent are covered by special contracts and would not be affected.

The Blue Cross also asked authority to:

1. Issue a new, deductible-type contract, offered to all subscribers on an individual choice basis at rates lower than those on the standard contract.

2. Offer optional benefits to both the standard contract and the proposed deductible-type contract which would provide broader maternity benefits and higher private room allowances.

3. Permit enrolling persons over 65.

Increased Last Fall

Blue Cross was granted a 13.9 per cent rate increase last October. The rate granted was three-fifths of the hike asked by Blue Cross, and the approval was made a year after the application.

R. H. Dabney, the organization's executive director, said "The present standard contract rates fall far short of covering even the bare cost of subscribers' benefits.

"Our total income from this contract in the first four months of 1959 was $6,800,000, but benefits for subscribers covered by that contract cost $7,500,000. This is completely exclusive of administrative costs, which are running slightly less than five per cent of income."

He said that Blue Cross had withdrawn nearly three million dollars from its reserves — more than 50 per cent.

"The rates we are proposing are essential if Blue Cross is to continue to serve its subscribers on a sound financial basis," he said.

Blue Cross said its deductible-type contract was designed to meet the demand of subscribers willing to assume part of the cost of a hospital stay in exchange for a relatively lower charge.

$75 Deductible

The benefits would be the same as those under the standard contract, except that the subscriber would pay directly, on each admission, a deductible sum of $25, or $5 for each day spent in the hospital, whichever is more, up to a maximum of $75.

Under the deductible-type contract, individual policies in the group policy would be $2.70 a month and family policies would be $6.30. In the non-group policies, individuals would pay $3.10 and families $6.90.

Blue Cross asked to change its maternity clauses under the family membership standard contract plan to increase to $100 the maternity benefits for an added monthly cost of 20 cents. Also, it would like to increase the benefit to 10 days' full coverage in maternity cases for an extra 44 cents a month for standard contract subscribers and 30 cents a month under the deductible-type contracts.
